

Hungarian Reds Told They Can't Be Sure of Aid

Khrushchev Won't Promise Help in Any New Revolt

Stalinvaros, Hungary — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev warned Hungarian communists today that if a new revolt comes they must not depend on Russian help.

Speaking to an outdoor crowd of 20,000 in this steel mill town built by the communists and named for Stalin, Khrushchev said:

"You should not think that if the counter-revolution comes again, you can depend on the Russians to come again and help. You must help yourselves."

He spoke without notes. Apparently he did not mean to imply that he unconditionally banned future armed Soviet support. Much of his speech was devoted to the help the Soviet army gave Hungarian communists in the 1956 revolt.

Foreign military observers estimate that there still are 60,000 to 80,000 Soviet troops in the country.

Urges Toughness

It was the fourth day of the Soviet delegation's visit to Hungary.

For his first excursion out of the capital, Khrushchev picked a town closely identified with the old idea that every communist country must have its own heavy industry. The 1956 rebels considered Stalinvaros a white elephant in a country without iron ore or coking coal.

Khrushchev was benignly critical of the Hungarian communists but shook his fist when he threatened:

"We tell the enemies of socialism and communism that we do not care if you curse us, but if you touch us, you will regret it."

He urged more toughness on the Hungarian party.

"I advise you not to look just in front of your noses," he said. "Look beyond. Your class consciousness should be stronger and you should see more clearly who is a friend and who is an enemy. You must be tougher, so tough that your enemies will always know that the Hungarian working class will not waver for a minute."

Chiang Threatens to Cut Ties With Japan

Taipei — President Chiang Kai-shek today indicated nationalistic China might sever diplomatic relations with Japan if Tokyo grants full rights to a communist Chinese trade mission.

In his first public statement on a simmering dispute between Japan and Formosa, the president said in an interview: "If a Chinese communist trade mission should be allowed to fly its flag (in Japan) and if it should be given diplomatic privileges, that would be tantamount to de facto recognition of the communists. Nationalist China cannot tolerate this and won't accept it."

Japanese Premier Nobusuke Kishi has told his parliament no law would prevent the mission's flying a red flag. There has been no indication in Tokyo that recognition of the Peiping regime is planned.

World Prepares for Easter

The Resurrection of Christ will be commemorated in Easter services tomorrow in a world troubled by a nuclear age cold war.

Millions of Christians, across the United States, in old Jerusalem, in many lands overseas and even far north of the Arctic circle, will find comfort and reassurance in the message that "the Lord is risen."

Many Reunions

The day is not only a holy day, but a cheery harbinger of spring weather in many regions that suffered a harsh winter. It is a day for wearing colorful new finery in Easter parades. For children it is the day of the Easter bunny and Easter eggs.

For many it is a time for travel and family reunions. Jerusalem, a traditional gathering spot for tourists and pilgrims at Easter, was busy with visitors for the first time since 1955.

Underworld Figure, Linked With Actress, Reported Threatening Her When Killed

Hollywood — Actress Lana Turner's 14-year-old daughter last night killed a handsome Hollywood underworld figure romantically linked with her mother.

Police said brown-haired Cheryl Crane plunged a knife into the abdomen of husky Johnny Stompanato, 42, in a pink-carpeted bedroom of Miss Turner's home.

Beverly Hills Police Chief Clinton Anderson said he was told that Cheryl stabbed Stompanato after he threatened her 38-year-old mother in a stormy scene in the glamorous blonde movie star's bedroom.

Cheryl, serene, and her mother sobbing, were taken to the Beverly Hills station. Miss Crane was charged with murder.

Turner's second husband and Cheryl's father, Stephen Crane, met them there.

Cheryl was booked on suspicion of murder and then turned over to juvenile authorities. She was given sedation and held overnight at the jail.

Anderson said Cheryl and her mother told him this story: Stompanato, who returned from an Acapulco, Mexico, vacation with Miss Turner March 19, went to her home last night and started berating her.

Cheryl heard the argument and went into the bedroom.

"I'll get you if it takes a year, a week or a day," Stompanato raged at Miss Turner.

"I'll cut you up. I'll stomp you and if I can't do it myself I'll find someone who can."

Cheryl went to the kitchen, picked up a 10-inch butcher knife and returned to the bedroom.

"You don't have to take that, mama," Cheryl said.

Then she stabbed Stompanato, pulled the knife out of his

$175,000 Loss In Cafe Fire

Ace of Clubs and
Two Apartments
Burnt at Madison

Madison — A raging fire, fanned by 30-miles-per-hour winds, destroyed the Ace of Clubs restaurant and two apartments Friday while the night club was closed in observance of Good Friday. Damage was estimated at $175,000.

Two families living on the second floor of the two-story frame structure fled the flames uninjured but lost most of their personal belongings.

Leo F. Welch, owner of the well known steak house, was attending church services when the fire broke out in the basement at about 1 p. m. He estimated damage.

Four fire companies battled the smoky 2-alarm blaze for five hours. Eye inflammation was prevalent among the firemen, but only two required hospitalization. A crowd of 500 collected at the scene.

Firemen said the blaze broke out in the basement under the dining room, apparently from a gas leak or defective wiring. Fire inspectors were to examine the ruins today.

Escaping from the upstairs apartments were Charles E. Bradley, his wife and two children, Darles, 2, and Dale, 14 months; and Air Force Sgt. William M. Stacey, Jr., and his wife, Barbara, who had moved in Thursday. The Staceys' daughter, Linda, 8, was staying with a grandmother in Chicago.

Mrs. Bradley noticed smoke seeping through an unused water-pipe hole about 1 p. m. Her husband ran next door and called the fire department.

There was no indication of what caused the fire. Sgt. Raymond Anderson, of the Pennsylvania state police, who with Edwards immediately began an investigation, noted the home used an old fashioned wood stove and had kerosene fired room heaters.

Jersey Shore, Pa.

—Ten members of a family, including eight children, burned to death early today in an explosion and fire which flashed through their 2-story pine timber home.

A neighbor said he saw the family of Torance Flook, 34-year-old truck driver, gathered at a second story window during the height of the blaze and tried to set up a ladder.

"A bureau fell in front of the window," said Herman Seichrist. "That's the last we saw of them."

The only occupant to escape the holocaust, was Flook's wife, who fled screaming out a back door, her hair a flaming torch and her night clothes afire.

Fire Chief Richard Edwards said Flook's charred body was found holding two of his children. The bodies of the other youngsters and their grandmother, Mrs. Maude Blair, 63, were huddled around him. Two family pets, a hound and a terrier also perished.

Didn't Have Chance

"The house was one big blaze when we arrived," said Edwards. "There was no chance to save any of them. The entire house was enveloped."

Edwards identified the Flook children as William, 15 months; Richard, 5; Kenneth, 6; Susan, 8; Terry, 10; Bonnie, 11, and Harry, 16. He said Mrs. Flook was badly burned and in a state of shock.

The fire chief said the house was about 1,600 feet from the nearest hydrant. "We got our hoses working as quickly as possible but the situation was hopeless. The place went up like a tinder box. They never had a chance."

Launch Second Flood Breaks Missile Sub River Dike in California

New Craft Expected
To Be Able to Attack
Almost Anywhere

Portsmouth, N. H. — This is launching day for U.S.S. Growler, the navy's second guided missile submarine, at the Portsmouth Naval shipyard, the nation's oldest.

Growler will be armed with Regulus II, a versatile missile with range exceeding 1,000 miles and speed exceeding one and a half times that of sound or about 1,000 m.p.h.

The weapon coupled with the submarine's mobility over the globe's four-fifths watery surface means Growler will be able to deliver a nuclear blow on virtually any military target in the world.

Sponsor of the new undersea warship was Mrs. Robert K. Byrds of Los Angeles, widow of Comdr. T. B. Oakley, who commanded the first Growler when she was lost in 1944 on her eleventh war patrol. A previous commander gave his life in the Pacific when he was hit by a Japanese plane.

The new storm front brewing in the Pacific was expected to hit sudden northern California today, reach San Francisco tonight and move on to southern California by midnight. But the weather bureau said it was not expected to be as heavy as the almost incessant rains which have brought nearly all streams to flood stage or over during recent weeks.

The land is mostly natural pasture, but includes alfalfa and clover fields. Large numbers of livestock graze in the area.

Four Saved From Drowning In Wolf River

Boat Overturns
Friday Afternoon
At Boody's Landing

New London — Four fishermen had a narrow escape about 1:30 Friday afternoon when they overturned their boat on the Wolf river near Boody's landing on the Northport road, west of the city limits.

Robert Thayer, who was fishing near the four anglers, assisted with the rescue. Two of the distressed fishermen were taken to shore and the other two clung to the overturned boat. Thayer then towed the overturned boat to the Boody dock.

Firemen, under the direction of Fire Chief Gus A. Feurig, assisted in the final stages of the rescue. Three of the four men in the boat were identified as Duane and Rodney Zabel of Clintonville, and Joe Davis, Waukegan, Ill.

Both police and firemen had to leave the scene before identifying the fourth man in the boat when the fire alarm sounded for a grass fire behind the homes in the 500 block of Waupaca street.

Church Plans New Parsonage

Old Building Will Be Remodeled for Sunday School Rooms

New London — By a majority vote of the church conference March 26, the First Methodist congregation here decided to purchase property for the construction of a new parsonage, the Rev. R. W. McKelthen, pastor, announced Friday. The congregation decided to buy five acres on the west side of Oshkosh street, near Washington High school. The land is located between the Radtke plat and the Henry Miles, Sr., property.

Plans are being made to build a new parsonage in the near future. The land also has room for the future construction of a new church. Members of the building committee are Melvin Myers, chairman, Don Broeker and Guy Barrington.

The present parsonage will be remodeled to house Sunday school classes and other church organizations.

The Rev. Mr. McKelthen pointed out that the need for the proposed building program is due to the expanding membership of the church and especially of the Sunday school classes. The church membership has increased 60 per cent in the last three years and the Sunday school membership increased 80 per cent during the same period, he said.

To Your Good Health

Duodenal Ulcer Exposed to Strong Digestive Juices

By Joseph D. Molner, M.D.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What is duodenal ulcer, and what causes it? What is the best treatment? I was told last winter after being X-rayed that I had duodenal ulcer. I got to feeling better, but now I am not feeling so good again. Our family doctor has left town and I will have to hunt a new one."

My first little lecture is this: If your doctor leaves town, look up a new one at once—so you'll have him when you need him!

Doctors, like patients, aren't all alike, but I think you will find that most physicians, particularly those doing a general or family practice, welcome it when prospective new patients drop in, or call, or even write a note, saying, "I don't need anything done for me now, but I want you to know who I am when I do need medical care."

There's always the device of having a routine checkup which isn't costly, and is an even better way to get acquainted. Besides, the doctor may find some little thing that can be corrected easily, thereby avoiding trouble later.

Ulcer a Sore? Now let's get to duodenal ulcers. An ulcer, of course, is a sore. The duodenum is that part of the intestine which starts immediately after the stomach. It is exposed, thus, to the strong digestive juices, and that fact seems to have a definite connection with the prevalence of ulcers of the duodenum—or duodenal ulcers.

The nervous, tense sort of person, whose stomach keeps churning away, along with the rest of him, is more likely to have such ulcers. Too much smoking, highly spiced foods, and alcohol likewise irritate the ulcers. (You can get an argument in any group of doctors of whether smoking is worse than alcohol, or vice versa. The obvious answer, I'd say, is to take either in great moderation. Wouldn't you?)

Nerve Control Anyway, learning to control your nerves is one part of the treatment. Eating regular meals is another. Avoid highly-spiced foods.

How much of the cause of ulcers is in the nervous aspect, and how much is purely physical, nobody knows, but we do know that nervous people are more susceptible, and they get better quicker if they learn to take things more calmly.

Drugs which reduce the over-activity of the stomach and its production of juices help. Pro-banthine, and drugs of that type.

Ulcers are a problem best treated by cooperation of patient and doctor, and the majority of them are healed without resorting to surgery.

All Colds Virus "Dear Dr. Molner: Can one build up resistance to virus colds? We have been taking vitamins and iron for several months, but still I have about a cold a month. Is it true that if you once have a virus cold you always have them?—Mrs. W. S."

To the best of our knowledge, all colds are "virus" colds. Colds, flu, grippe, polio, measles, chickenpox and a lot of other diseases are caused by virus, which is a very small organism; a lot of other diseases are caused by bacteria, which are larger organisms. The phrase "virus cold," while often used, doesn't mean anything. Don't be misled by it.

No Connection "Dear Dr. Molner: I have a very delicate question. My 8-year-old girl received her polio shots about a year ago. Her irritability has been increasing ever since, and it's getting to a point of great alarm. We have consulted our doctor and if you will pardon me, it seems he does not or cannot give an answer.—J.F." I don't think it's a delicate question, but I do think you may have fixed your mind into one thought that isn't logical. There is no reason to think that polio shots (or any other vaccination) will have anything to do with irritability. If your doctor can't find any physical answer (nutrition, illness of any sort, pinworms, etc.) then discuss with him the question of whether some emotional problem may be involved. (Copyright, 1958)

AAA Appeals For 'Realistic' Speed Limits

Gets Help From League of State Municipalities

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison — With the help of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, the head of the Wisconsin division of the American Automobile association is appealing to local governments of Wisconsin to provide "realistic" speed limits.

Stuart B. Wright, general manager of the motorist's organization, made his proposal in an article published here in the official journal of the municipal federation.

He said his organization has had an unprecedented volume of complaints from "careless-law-abiding drivers" about the impracticable speed limits imposed by many cities and villages. Some of those limits have

Attempt to Force Door of Home Fails

Melvin Knoke, 1205 N. Appleton street, reported to police Friday night that someone had attempted to break into his home.

Police said the burglar or vandal had tried to pry open a door leading from a screened-in breezeway to the kitchen. Although the door was considerably scarred from prying attempts, no entry was made, police said.

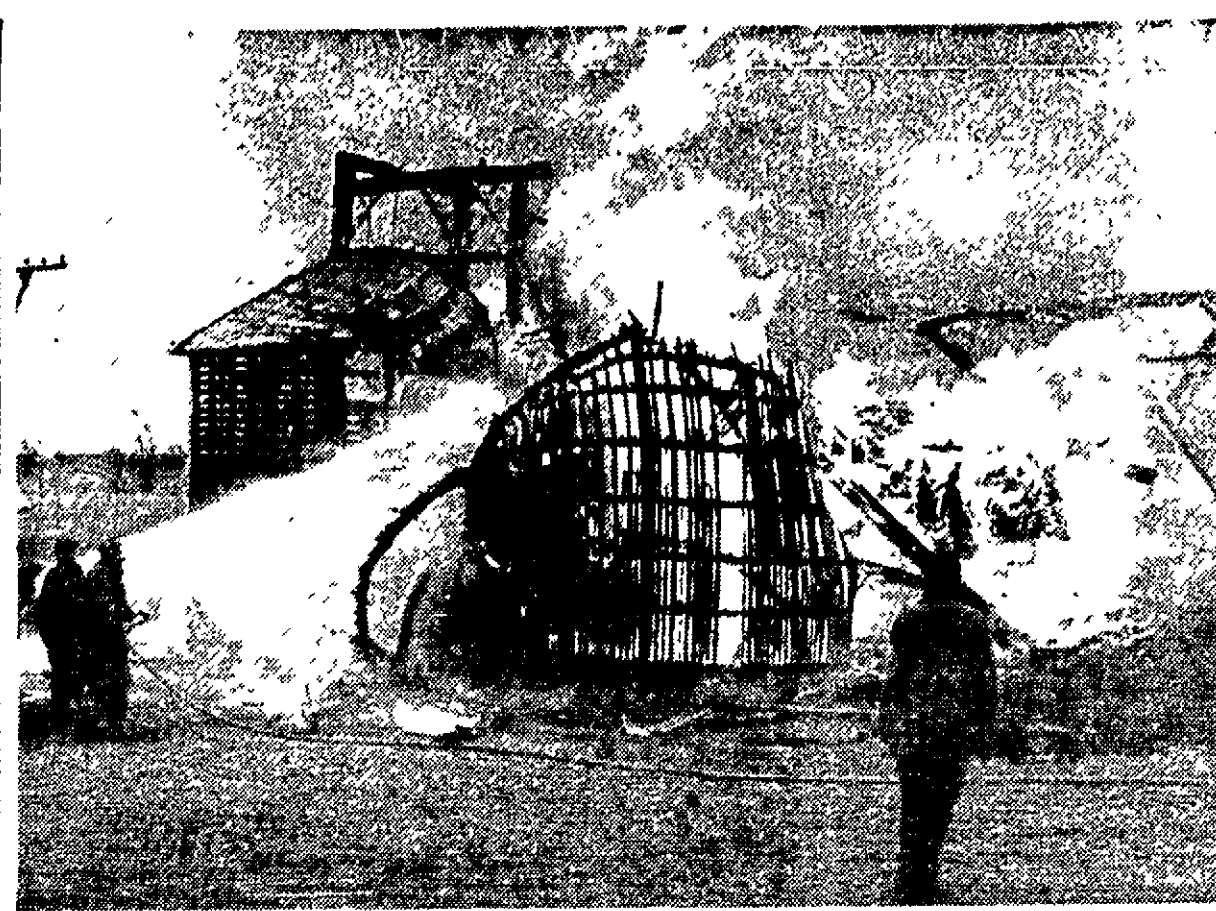

been posted for a long time, but now are being enforced more diligently through use of radar detection equipment, he explained.

Wright said some communities have not changed their speed laws since the invention of the automobile, and that many of them are punishing drivers under the point system, not because the drivers are operating unsafely, but because they are in violation of unrealistic local ordinances.

He said the AAA has put new energy behind its long-time campaign to persuade localities to adopt the 85 per cent method of determining what is a reasonable speed generally within municipal limits.

That is the speed at or below which 85 per cent of the motorists drive.

"It is logical to assume that if 85 per cent of the drivers using a segment of road or street are moving at or below a rate of, for example, 35 miles per hour, then this is a safe speed under existing conditions and the limit should be posted as such. Those persons careless enough, or whose judgment is faulty enough, to exceed this speed should, of course, be subject to selective enforcement," Wright maintains.

Fast Moving Flames Destroyed the barn on the Robert Johnson farm, route 1, Hortonville, about 5:30 Friday afternoon. Hortonville Fire Chief Lawrence Moder said the fire apparently was started by a spark from a tractor Johnson parked in the barn shortly before discovering the blaze. The barn, silo and tractor were lost. The fire was out of control before two Hortonville fire trucks arrived. The barn was empty. (Vance Photo)

Low Center Brings Rain To Fox Cities

Wisconsin and the Fox Cities drew clouds, winds and rain today from a single huge storm which dominated the entire nation's weather.

The storm center was a deep low pressure zone centered this morning near Lincoln, Neb. The low center's movement northeastward promised strong easterly winds over Wisconsin today.

The rain began in Appleton about 7:55 this morning and had accumulated to .03 of an inch by 10 o'clock, according to the weather station at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. The temperature at 10 o'clock was still 39, the same as the overnight low. Appleton's high Friday was 57. The wind this morning was from the east at 18 miles an hour.

The weatherman said Wisconsin's precipitation would be confined mostly to the southern half of the state, with the possibility of the state's first thunderstorms of 1958 in the extreme south.

Forecast
The state forecast calls for mostly cloudy and windy today, tonight and Sunday, with occasional rain mostly in the south and central portions. It will be a little cooler over most of the state Sunday. The low tonight will be in the 30s in the north and in the 40s in the south and central portions.

The Associated Press reported that Easter parades in New England and in a belt extending from the Gulf coast west to Arizona can expect fair weather tomorrow. Most other parts of the nation can look for some rain.

And in western mountain areas, the weather bureau said in a revised Eastern forecast today, heavy snow is likely.

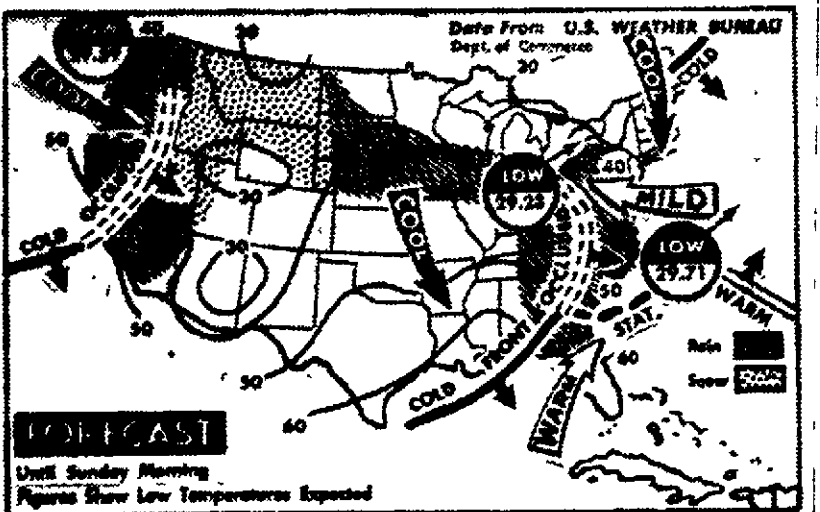

The prospect is for fair, mild weather through most of New England and over an area from eastern Arizona through the southern plains to western Florida.

The bureau said stormy weather now current in the plains will spread showers to the Atlantic states tomorrow. Showery, mild, windy conditions were forecast from eastern Georgia northward to Connecticut.

The western edge of the rainy area should move east to the Appalachian mountains by Easter Sunday afternoon, the bureau said, with wet weather also foreseen for most of the Great Lakes region.

After making this statement to his studio audience, Arthur Godfrey said: "I've been using Niagara Cyclo-Massage® these past few weeks...and I do believe it helps me to relieve tension and nervous fatigue due to overwork and over-exercise. It also helps me sleep better...and I think it does these things through increased circulation of blood. Now I don't suffer from arthritis, but they tell me that Niagara Cyclo-Massage® is terrific for chronic arthritis pains, too."

Clinical research in leading institutions has repeatedly proved the accuracy of Mr. Godfrey's statements. Easter Eve

One of the stories that came from the horrors of the second World War is particularly appropriate for the Easter season. It concerns a Russian woman named Elizabeth Pilenko, of a wealthy family who nevertheless was tried at one time as a Bolshevik. Later she became a Catholic nun and was imprisoned in the Nazi concentration camp at Ravensbruck.

Even the guards called her "that wonderful Russian nun" and there was no thought of putting her to death as hundreds were lined up for the gas chambers. But, when one such young woman became terrified and hysterical, Mother Maria insisted on taking her place. The date was Good Friday, 1945.

Another Russian, Dostoevsky, wrote about the "intimations of immortality" which the poet Wordsworth thought were

The President's Veto

Back in 1955 Charles Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau, wrote that "the political approach to the solution of farm problems is a proven failure." The uproar over President Eisenhower's veto of a bill which would freeze farm support prices for another year ought to bring home to Americans in general and farmers in particular how true was Shuman's observation.

The bill obviously was a loaded proposition. Republicans from dairy states have charged that Democrats added amendments including supports of basic crops with the gleeful assurance that the bill would then become unpalatable to the president and a wonderful political issue in all farm areas during an election year. Republicans are not simon pure in the matter either. Rep. Melvin Laird's request last winter for the resignation of Secy. Benson, not because he was wrong but because he was unpopular, emphasized the political aspect of the "farm problem," an aspect that actually is publicized as far more extensive than it is.

The six basic crops which submit to controls in return for price supports from the federal government bring in about 24 per cent of U. S. farm income. Growers of other crops that receive no direct support have generally resisted any attempt to add it on. And no wonder! The result of high fixed price supports has been to price some commodities out of consumption, increase over-production, encourage foreign competition with a resulting loss of foreign markets, and do very little for the small "family type" farm the politicians have sentimentally held up as the ideal to be protected at all cost.

In 1953, for instance, the biggest wheat loan in Kansas was $139,237 but the average loan was only $1,525. The largest cotton loan in Missouri was more than $800,000 but the average was only $395, hardly a figure to enrich a farm family. Wars, not high price supports, brought prosperity to farm families for a while.

Canadian and American Campaigns

Since many of our representatives in Washington are striving to find cures for the recession which will also appeal to the voters and enhance their chances of reelection, many of them undoubtedly watched with interest the recent Canadian campaign and election.

Canada is in a recession similar to that troubling the United States. It is worse in some respects and may be better in others. The number of unemployed is reported to be proportionately greater than ours. After a lively campaign the Canadian voters returned Prime Minister John Diefenbaker to office with a history-making majority in Parliament.

Since the economic problems in Canada and the United States are very similar, the issues in the Canadian campaign were not very different from those now being whipped up for our congressional campaign. Diefenbaker proposed to attack the unemployment problem with a huge $12 billion public works program. He proposed

Questions 'Business' Meeting on Sunday

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Yes, I agree, we as a Christian nation have been taught six days shall thou work and God blessed and sanctified the seventh day and He rested from all his work. But do we have to have a meeting on a Sunday afternoon to bring up such a controversial movement? Should we not be ashamed of ourselves, Mr. Chairman, to schedule a meeting of this association's movement on our day of rest? You are contradicting yourself if your business meeting must be held on Sunday afternoon.

And what about the religious who have Saturday as their church day and observe it as a day of rest? First thing we know we must not even have religious freedom in this country if we are going to dominate the smaller groups and close all our business establishments on their first day of the week. Isn't this still a free country of the people and for the people and by the people?

possessed by children but were lost through the petty trials of everyday life:

God took seeds from different worlds and sowed them on this Earth, and His garden grew up and everything came up that could come up, but grows, lives and is alive only through the feeling of its contact with other mysterious worlds. If that feeling grows weak or is destroyed in you, the heavenly growth will die away in you. . . . Hold firm and doubt not the power of the heavenly light . . . for your light will not die even when you are dead. The righteous man departs but his light remains.

This is the story of Spring and of returning life to the Earth but it is also the story of Easter, the assurance that there is life beyond and above that which we experience today, that there is consistency and coherence to existence.

Easter is the time for affirmation even when it is — as it was for Mother Maria — the giving up of this life.

The panaceas offered by various farm area congressmen are supposed to keep up the high support level until such a time as the farmer voluntarily limits his production. This sounds grand but has little to do with human nature. Why should a farmer, under Sen. Proxmire's plan for instance, cut down to a percentage of his production base for a guaranteed rebate when he can race along at full production with price supports still insuring the purchase of his products at a high level? Certainly the bottom should not be pulled out of any support program immediately, but only the threat of lower supports will force the adoption of any real self-help program.

The cause of the "farm problem" is simple enough but there is no simple solution nor do we agree with pious statements that all farm programs must be treated alike. The accelerated farm production during World War II increased the means of production, and most definitely an immediate return to the simple business of supply and demand would have been disastrous to farm economy and the national economy. But flexible price supports, not only backed by President Eisenhower and Secy. Benson, but by a Democratic Congress and President Truman and then Secy. of Agriculture Clinton Anderson in 1948, must be the gradual means of getting the government out of the business of farming.

Today about $20,000 worth of equipment is needed for efficient operation of a farm operated for commercial benefit. Obviously this is not an easy sum to acquire and deserves something better than limitations set in Washington on the use of that expensive machinery, or the increased ability to produce more per acre and per worker, or on the farmer who is trying to make a good living from his business. The sooner the government returns to a policy of assisting in farming rather than controlling, the better it will be for the real farmer.

the construction of railroads, highways and airways into northern Canada to provide jobs for hundreds of thousands of Canadians.

His opponent Lester B. Pearson, leader of the Liberal party, called the Diefenbaker program fraudulent in that it did not promise much beyond the government's present spending, and because it did not offer jobs now when needed rather than after months of necessary planning for such construction. Finally he ridiculed the program as valueless since no one would use the roads running "from igloo to igloo."

Pearson offered an immediate $400 million tax cut, including some retroactive cuts, a holiday from withholding, and a plan for building up trade.

The issues were not very different from those in prospect in the United States this fall. It is impossible to say that the voters in this country will follow those in Canada, but for what it is worth the Canadians chose the offer of jobs on public construction rather than the quick and easy tax cut plan.

If you would conduct your meeting in a Christian-like manner—but what usually happens on a disputable subject such as yours? Impious words are often uttered when the discussion gets out of control or you argue so vehemently that friends become enemies. Remember, God also commanded, "That ye love one another as I have loved you."

I also agree with you that many in business today are forgetting their Christian obligations in respect to their fellow man, but in many other respects besides being open on Sunday, I do misrepresent, deceive or swindle the public every day in some way or manner which in my estimation is just as corrupt as shopping on Sunday. Please, hereafter, remember your Christian obligation and schedule your business meeting on another day of the week.

Poll Finds Ethical Precepts First in Rearing Children

BY ELMO C. WILSON
Director, World-Poll

Adults reflect both their own values and those of their culture in the concepts they teach their children. A generation or two ago, religious and spiritual values were emphasized in child rearing. Today, while each country varies somewhat, the ethical precept of decency and honesty toward all men is the one most strongly endorsed in all countries.

World-Poll asked the publics in 13 countries this question: "Which of these is most important to teach children; to be ambitious and get ahead; to obey their parents; to enjoy themselves; to place trust in God; to be decent and honest?"

Percentages ranging from 40 to 70 plumped for the ethical precept of honest. In several countries—the Netherlands, Brazil, Australia and Great Britain—second place was given to religious faith. Most widely accepted in second place is obedience to parents. This old-fashioned value has apparently survived the era of permissive parents.

Catholic Italy

Catholic Italy presents an interesting picture. It ranks highest in choosing "obedience to parents," second highest in "trust in God," and scores a very high rate in "to be decent and honest." It is possible that these scores reflect traditional Catholic teachings of obedience to parental authority, love of God and conduct toward others.

On the other hand, France shows up quite well on both obedience to parents and ethical conduct toward one's neighbor, but relatively lower on the religious precept. And Protestant, liberal Sweden registers astonishingly large scores under both these headings. A religious pattern seems to be lacking in these findings.

Ambitious Japanese

Only in Japan does one find second place occupied by the advice to "be ambitious and get ahead." Not even here, though, does this

These Days

Two Great Religions Mark Important Holidays

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY
(Copyright, 1958)

The spring is here for the two great holidays, Passover and Easter. This year, they are being celebrated almost simultaneously. The first Seder of the Jews came on the evening of Good Friday of the Christians.

Thus, in Sokolsky these festivals of resurrection and freedom, the two great religions of western civilization meet and, as one might say, are jointly remembered by those who worship and who love tradition.

Passover is the festival of freedom. It marks the revolution of the Jewish slaves in Egypt, men, women and children, who under the leadership of Moses crossed from Egypt into the desert and wandering 40 years, molded themselves into a nation that settled in Canaan, in what is now Israel and Jordan, and there established a separate and distinct national existence.

Happened Often

This particular feat was not extraordinary. In those times many entire nations moved from one place to another and were either destroyed in battle or were absorbed by their environment or established themselves as a power. The Hebrews were originally a shepherd people out of Ur of Chaldaea who had settled in Canaan, then went to Egypt where they achieved distinction, afterwards suffering humiliation and slavery, and then rebelling under a forceful leader and escaping the wrath of the oppressor.

But, this people had something more to their strength. They had an ideal, a belief, a hope. It is that which has kept them alive even to this day when many of their neighbors have disappeared into the Limbo of forgotten peoples. This idea was the belief in God and His Law. So their leader Moses has not been described as a great military chieftain, or an empire-builder or a powerful administrator. Rather he is the law-giver, the man who went up into the mountain alone and who, having returned, brought with him the law, the Ten Commandments.

The five books of Moses, the Pentateuch, has become not only the law of the Jews but in its moral connotations, the law of the Christians and of Islam as well. The social implications of the Old Testament, when considered in the context of their times, are enormously progressive. They are an index to freedom and to the dignity of man and although centuries pass before men are suffislight differences between the ideas of the sexes, but these were minor. In these countries women are more likely to stress religious values, men honesty.

The generations, by and large, are also in agreement. There are a few minor variations, such as the fact that older people were somewhat more likely to stress parental obedience and faith in God. Young people were apt to vote for ambition (in order to advance one's social position) and enjoyment.

No Class Difference

By and large, no class differences appear in these ideas on child-rearing. Prosperous and less prosperous folk in every country come up with about the same variety of opinions. Perhaps parental obedience is a shade more important on the lower rungs of the economic ladder and the ethical concept is a trifle more pronounced on the higher economic rungs.

Figures are shown below for Sweden, Australia, Brazil and Japan because these differences are strongest in these countries.

It may seem, from the findings of this poll, that the world has to an extent turned its back on spirituality and has taken a materialistic, or perhaps more accurately, a humanistic direction in its emphasis on purely social ethics.

We might remember, however, that one of the great spiritual teachers of all time advised his followers to "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you."

He considered this one of the highest forms of spirituality.

Harrisburg, Pa. — A salesman in a southeastern Pennsylvania clothing store decided after eight weeks he had had enough of his job and quit.

The Pennsylvania unemployment commission's board of review agreed the salesman had a "compelling and necessitous reason" for quitting and awarded him weekly unemployment benefits.

Among other things, the board noted:

But soon the grass is green even over the snow and crocuses appear and the birds become so very busy. And then come tulips and daffodils and the ferns seem to be pushing up their little, twisted heads and the robins arrive to awaken the morning.

It is spring. What has been last year is this year. The leaves had fallen off the trees and the trees were stark and cold and naked, but now little buds appear and they soon will flower into apple and cherry and all sorts of beautiful blossoms to perfume the air and to remind the world that there is no death, that life is eternal and everlasting, that winter is a prelude to spring.

Finds Firemen's Work Alarming

Pegler Points Up Uncertainty Of Smoke Eaters' Existence

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York — From my hotel in New York I sometimes can see the big red wagons roll through the traffic, squalid and screaming and snorting on their way to smolder in an awning or a wastebasket or —you never can tell. That is the life of a fireman. He may go for weeks with no more business than you could handle with a bucket of water. But—he never can tell.

In the last few years the loss of life in tenement fires in New York and Chicago has been going up. Boston has had bad luck, too, and a Boston fireman told me the trouble there was that a lot of old frame houses and old flat buildings with wooden timbers and floors are still in service through those bitter winters when the people crowd on the heat in gas burners and family stoves and go to bed.

One cold night a few weeks ago I was sitting with a city detective in his own car on Lexington avenue, facing north, when the engines came growling out of 49th street, which is a west bound street, barged through the red light, then turned west in 50th street, against the traffic, and hove to alongside the Waldorf Tower. This is a dramatic production in New York, a fire show from a box alarm, even in fireproof buildings. Not all of us react, nowadays, but my ears always come up.

The Waldorf Tower is quality. Herbert Hoover lives there and Gen. MacArthur and, sometimes the duke and duchess, and miscellaneous carriage trade. Not that the firemen would do any more for them than for a hive of poor Puerto Ricans in a crowded firetrap in Harlem, where drunks are forever setting their bedding afire, but the presence of such characters, all with great bundles of clippings in the newspaper morgues, lends class to the occasion if a person has any imagination and appreciation. Can you fancy Wally, the duchess, doing a one-and-a-half out of a high window, in her night shirt, onto a fire department trampolin? Or old Gen. Mac strutting down the ladder in his pajamas with his medals up?

I said: "Look at that guy at that tiller" as the long one whipped around from 49th into Lexington and whipped from Lexington into 50th. "I don't want any work on those ladders," my friend the cop said. "I don't see how they can stand the strain. They never know what they are going to face in a couple of minutes after that darn thing strikes and they jump on. Just piling through the traffic is risky enough, but when they get there they may find flames at the windows and women and kids screaming. The sight of red at those windows makes me sick at my stomach." That was what a fireman in a house downtown wrote me once. I had done some flippancy about firemen playing pinocle and knitting to while away the years until retirement. This fireman said that, confidentially, he and some others he could name, sometimes vomited when their number struck. Soldiers said the same thing in the first war. When zero struck and the whistles shrilled along the trench some soldiers got sick and weak, but up they went.

I walked around the corner. The doorman of the Tower has been there for years, but I doubt he has seen the red wagons call more than a couple of times. He said it was somewhere up the service stairs. Firemen were hustling in, making shuffling noises with their boots and heavy slickers, luging pikes and some mysterious new black boxes, whatever they are for. There were two executive cars with white helmets neatly arrayed in a row on the back shelf of each. And a radio telephone on one of the long wagons was jabbering away about fires here and there over the city in a feminine voice.

Recalls Incident
Most people just walked by with hardly a glance, but reporters of my generation never get blasé about these things. In London a few years ago, I turned a corner in Soho, a dark, squalid section of squalid restaurants touted for atmosphere, and a bunch of pompers were squirting little streams down a cellar window. Their fire engines were not much larger than laundry carts here and the English ladder wagons have a telescope or jack-knife device on top because they could never get our long ones through their narrow, angular streets. I remarked to an English friend that these fellows were very quiet about it.

"Do they make a row in America?" she said. "Make a row in America? That isn't quite the way to put it."

We raise hell in America. Any fire is a very dramatic occasion. I doubt whether otherwise you could get young fellows to join the department and rise those wild wagons through the traffic and against the lights and, in their turn, skip up those ladders, now seven or eight stories long, to guide frightened, weak, clumsy people down to the pavements, so often because some bum, of either sex, be it stipulated, has conked off with a cigaret going and set fire to a tenement that goes up like a match. No wonder they sometimes vomit when their number strikes.

Air Pollution Group Formed

Study Effects of Nuclear Energy and Autos on Breathing

United Nations, N. Y. — Automobiles and use of nuclear energy are adding to man's problem of trying to keep the air clean enough to breathe.

The UN world health organization (WHO) has set up a committee of experts on air pollution to deal with the situation.

Prof. H. G. Baily, director of WHO's division of environmental sanitation, says the average human breathes about 30 pounds of air, drinks 4 1/2 pounds of water and eats 2 1/2 pounds of food a day. But only recently, he says, has man paid much attention to seeing that the air he takes into his lungs is as clean as the food and water he takes into his stomach.

Baily cites a 10-year study by the city of Los Angeles establishing hydrocarbons from automobile exhausts as a major factor in air pollution.

Special Aspect

Writing in the current issue of World Health, a WHO publication, Baily says pollution of the air from use of nuclear energy represents a very special aspect of the problem.

He commented that the problem is now being handled by departments of atomic energy organizations in various countries, but it "is apparent that with the development of nuclear energy for industrial purposes, the whole subject of dispersal, monitoring and control of radioactive effluents cannot remain divorced from the problem of air pollution in general."

WHO's committee on air pollution is made up of medical, public health specialists from the United States, Europe, Asia and Africa. Its aim is to promote world cooperation on reducing pollution.

Women Plan Coming Season At Fox Valley

Group to Purchase Needed Items for Clubhouse Addition

Kaukauna — Officers and committee chairman for the women at the Fox Valley Golf club met recently to begin preliminary plans for the coming season with special emphasis on work at the new addition to the clubhouse.

Members discussed draperies for the new addition and necessary furniture for the women's locker room. Future meetings will be held to discuss money raising projects to help finance the purchases. The first such event will be a public card party at the club on May 5 with Miss Mildred Nelson as general chairman.

KHS Thinclads, Coach Prepare Practice Track

Kaukauna — The enthusiasm of the Kaukauna High school track coach, Wayne Welch, and about 10 members of the squad was displayed Friday morning when they turned out on their own time to get the track in shape for practice sessions.

The present track is not suitable for meets in the city and was run down so badly it was practically impossible for adequate practice. Deep ruts, shoots of grass, broken glass and large stones were in evidence on the cinder path prior to the work detail but this was solved by having a city grader level the cinders while student squad members picked up most of the glass and other hazardous debris.

The volunteer crew cleaned out the high jump and pole vault pits and spread a truckload of sand about to give jumpers a soft spot to land. The broad jump pit was also cleaned out and a load of shavings used to line the pits.

Work on the shot and discus areas consisted of lining the field at various intervals to permit quick checks of the distances. Kaukauna has no home meets scheduled this season.

Another change this year due to the large number of teams will be continuance of competition during the week of July 4. OVER HALF A MILLION prescriptions have been filled by Belling's Prescription Pharmacy over the past 65 years, the store announced Friday. "Prescribed medicine is hand-made medicine," Belling's explained, pointing out that such medicines must be painstakingly compounded by the trained, skilled hands of a pharmacist. The store's modern redwood and Tennessee stone exterior is shown in the picture above. Your prescription is in safe hands at Belling's, since their registered pharmacists know their responsibility and perform their services in faithful conformance to the doctor's specifications. Medicines are carefully compounded exactly as ordered by your physician. "Your health is our business," is the Appleton firm's motto. Phone number at Belling's is RE 3-5551.

their Broadcast representative. Any catsup label is eligible for the promotion. Free point of sale material in color and imprinted with the catsup logo are readily available from the Broadcast Company. Broadcast Beef Stew newspaper advertising is also being continued with the theme "Look at all that Meat."

The Cimalene Company and the Corn Products Refining Company, taking a cue from past successes, are launching a new "piggy-back" offer. In this latest tie-in offer, the customer receives free, a generous trial box of famous Niagara Laundry Starch when she buys a regular-size package of Booster-Action Cimalene. The sample box of Niagara Starch rides atop the Cimalene package.

This new promotion will be backed by heavy advertising in the Post-Crescent with Cimalene using newspapers for all its selling messages. Dealers are urged to give this new Cimalene-Niagara promotion plenty of shelf space. Compatible products and a generous offer, backed by all-out selling efforts by the manufacturers will make this one of the year's most successful promotions.

TWENTY OR THIRTY cars a day can be washed by one man with ease, as against the usual five or six, with the aid of the U.S. Automatic Washmobile, shown in action at Joe Verrier Service, 204 E. Washington street. The fast mechanical car washer makes the old hose-and-bucket method of washing a car as obsolete as the horse and buggy, the station reports. Readers are invited to see the Washmobile in action. Phone number of the station is RE 3-8071.

The machine is precision-engineered from its 50 spray nozzles to its ball-bearing mobility and is built for years of trouble-free use. The secret of the machine's beautiful work, according to the Appleton station, is its scientific use of detergent combined with spray that turns out a gleaming wash job unsurpassed by other means. After a car is driven into the wash bay, it stands still, while the Washmobile first rolls forward on its tracks, spraying the water from sides and top, loos-

Advertising News Hiram Walker, Incorporated Announces Expanded Schedule

As evidence of his company's faith in the power of advertising to move merchandise, Hiram Walker, Incorporated, district manager for Hiram Walker in eastern Wisconsin, has announced a greatly expanded schedule for Hiram Walker's Ten High bourbon. According to Mr. Castine, more newspapers in more cities are being used for the popular brand and the dollar expenditure is the largest since the brand was returned to the market following World War II. Mrs. Castine advised that Ten High bourbon was at one time the largest selling straight whiskey in the United States but was withdrawn from the market following Pearl Harbor.

at Madison on WISC, Channel 3.

The choir's annual appearances on the Artist series has established it well in the minds of Appleton concert-goers. The tours do much to acquaint people of neighboring areas with the music program carried on by the college.

The program this year will feature music ranging from the great choral masterpieces of Victoria and Palestrina to the vigorous and homey music of Gershwin and Aaron Copland. George Cox, faculty baritone, will be heard as soloist, as will Allen Bonde, senior piano major.

Reserved seats are now available at Bellings Pharmacy.

In Good Taste Car Tank Should Be Kept Full

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: I own my own car and whenever I have a date with a young man who doesn't have a car, I always take mine because of the convenience. Sometimes it is necessary to stop at the garage for gasoline before starting out. When this happens, would it be improper to allow him to pay for the gasoline, or must I pay for this myself?

Answer: You must pay for it yourself, in fact you should keep the tank of your car full so as not to embarrass the young man by buying gasoline in his presence.

Well-Trained Maid

Dear Mrs. Post: Not long ago a friend of mine invited me to spend the weekend at her house. Before showing me to my room, we sat downstairs and talked awhile. When I went upstairs to my room, I discovered my luggage was unpacked and everything put away. This surprised me as I think permission should have been asked by the maid before going through my luggage. Will you please give me your opinion?

Answer: In my opinion, she was a well-trained maid who did exactly what was expected of her. A guest who does not like this service should have an unopenable lock on her (or his) luggage and then when asked by the maid for the keys, explain that she (or he) prefers to unpack for her (or him) self.

Family Problem

Dear Mrs. Post: When my parents died they left their possessions to my brother and me. Both of us had married. Now my brother has died. Don't you think his wife should offer those family things to me?

Answer: Unless your brother had stipulated otherwise in his will, these possessions are legally hers. She might perhaps be willing to give some one thing to you which you cared very much about because it belonged to your parents, but it is hardly fair to expect her to give up things which are associated with all of her married life.

The Controversial Trapeze-Line Sack dress, shown above, modeled by Louise Palmieri of New York, is the modish Easter outfit that was reported to be in Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower's wardrobe. Questioned concerning the stylish sack, the First Lady's secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffree, said there was "absolutely no truth" to the story that Mrs. Eisenhower would appear in the 1958 new look. It was stated that Mrs. Eisenhower will dress, as she has in the past, in full skirts or slightly modified sheath skirts. (AP Wirephoto)

At Easter all Christendom renews its faith in the eternal promise of the Resurrection. Throughout the four corners of the world—wherever men and women of God have carried this promise—the Light of Truth has dispelled the darkness of ignorance and superstition. And wherever the Cross has been carried, men of Medicine and Pharmacy have performed their specialized services for the good of mankind. Together they go forward with Faith to help lift the oppressive weight of pain . . . of fear . . . and of ignorance from the shoulders of man.

Lonesome Loser Laments; Tells Night Shift Wife to Persevere

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: The letter from the woman whose husband worked the night shift really hit close to home.

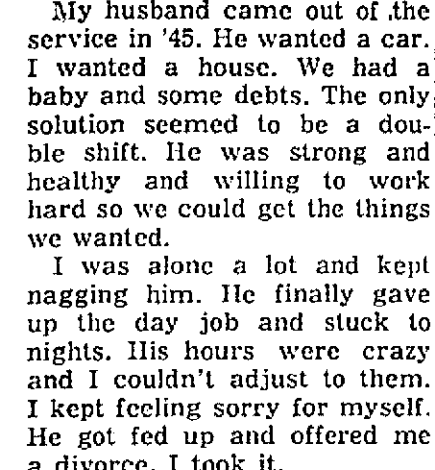

My life is a mess because I didn't know how to handle the problem. Please, Ann, print this for the benefit of those who still have a man around.

My husband came out of the service in '45. He wanted a car. I wanted a house. We had a baby and some debts. The only solution seemed to be a double shift. He was strong and healthy and willing to work hard so we could get the things we wanted.

I was alone a lot and kept nagging him. He finally gave up the day job and stuck to nights. His hours were crazy and I couldn't adjust to them. I kept feeling sorry for myself. He got fed up and offered me a divorce. I took it.

Now I'm alone and miserable. Fourteen years of marriage have gone up in smoke. I'm telling you night-shift wives to learn how to keep occupied. Don't make your husband the center of your whole life. Cultivate friends, find a hobby. Keep busy until he comes home, and greet him with a smile.

The only man I ever loved is gone, because I didn't know the things I'm telling you. Now he's married again — to a woman who knows how to be a wife to a night-shift husband. — MADAME QUEEN WHO LOST HER KING know. I have two brothers who have been out of work since December and they'd love to have any kind of a job. — DONNA

DEAR ANN: I'm 17 and have never been out with a boy. I've been allowed to go to a few parties, but my father always drives me and picks me up. I'm the only one in our crowd who is having this kind of father-trouble and I'd like to know what to do about it.

Mother died when I was three and my grandmother lives with us. She's no help, in fact she's stricter than Dad. Believe it or not she made me wear long underwear until I was 13 years old.

I'm not boy-crazy and I always conduct myself like a lady. My grades are very good and I've never given my father any trouble. I'm afraid the fellows will get tired of asking me out pretty soon. Do you think I should take drastic steps? Where do I start? — NANCY

Dear Nancy: Start here by reading this column to your father.

Dear Dad: It's tough to be both mother and dad—especially to a girl, but don't clip her wings so she can't fly out of the nest—or she'll fall out, and maybe land on her head.

A girl 17 should be dating. This is the time of life to learn about young men so she'll be equipped to make an intelligent choice for marriage.

Girls who are deprived of a reasonable amount of freedom often get into serious trouble. They fall for the first bum who offers them an "escape." They don't know how to evaluate male attention. They confuse physical excitement with true love and become an easy target for a smooth talker. Or — they go the other way. They become withdrawn and ingrown because they've had no experience with members of the opposite sex, and therefore no confidence in their capacity to deal with them.

Find the middle road—and fast, before it's too late. (Copyright, 1958)

Patri Presents Thoughts On Meaning of Easter

BY ANGELO PATRI

The story of Easter is so tremendous we must take it on faith. It carries so wondrous a message, so staggering to our finite minds, that to glimpse its meaning for us we symbolize it.

We place lilies of exquisite loveliness on the altars remembering when we once held them in our hands as dark and apparently lifeless things and then buried them in the earth only to see them rise in this unearthly beauty, we catch a hint of the meaning of the Resurrection and sing "Hallelujah."

Symbols of Easter

All about us are the hints of renewed life if we but consider them. In our twice blessed land Easter comes with spring and we see the miracle of renewed life in every tree and plant and weed in the garden. That which was known to be dead has come to life again. The new leaves appear on the bare limbs of the trees and the birds return to their accustomed places. Earth and sky smile and the smile lights every face it beams upon, and we say, "Happy Easter."

Then the children. How happy

"How come Alvin came up to the door to call for you? Something wrong with his car horn?"

Beauty

Foot Troubles Can Be Avoided

BY MARIAN MATTHEWS

Children's feet get a good deal of attention and care so they will grow properly. In spite of this, however, there are many youngsters with foot problems and it is said adults' foot troubles in four out of five instances originate during adolescence. Some weekly care will help catch minor foot and toe ills before they become painful and serious.

The old theory that feet are unattractive is simply not a fact for healthy feet look good and they feel well. A teenager should consider the appearance of her feet as important as her hands or face. The habit of careful pedicures done regularly each week makes it possible to keep them good looking.

First signs of beginning foot ailments show in a variety of ways—sometimes a group of toenails, contracted toes, calluses and corns. A feeling of foot weakness after walking short distances is another indication of current and future difficulties.

Take advantage of smart saddle shoes—the laced oxford—for healthful support and remember plenty of walking in such comfortable shoes is an excellent way to assure yourself of good feet. Socks that are too short can help cause toe deformities. Best sock for active teens is an absorbent cotton type a good half inch longer than the great toe.

When you exercise to improve your figure remember the feet that support it—stand on a thick book and curl toes over the side. Do this about 12 times—it is an excellent foot strengthener.

Laird Calls Farm Organization Meeting To Study Dairy Bill

Washington—(AP)—Rep. Laird, R-Wis., has invited representatives of Wisconsin farm organizations to a meeting at Stevens Point, Wis., April 11 to discuss dairy problems.

He said the meeting will be held in cooperation with the Wisconsin Council of Agriculture. He also said hearings by a house agriculture subcommittee are expected to be held the latter part of April and early May on a new dairy program.

earthly soil, risen in the triumph of the spirit.

Thus we would prepare our children to know: Defeat like death, is but a passing thing, by which we get the true meaning of life: the loss of self to ed. recover it, cleansed of all

Happy Easter.

Children's feet get a good deal of attention and care so they will grow properly. In spite of this, however, there are many youngsters with foot problems and it is said adults' foot troubles in four out of five instances originate during adolescence. Some weekly care will help catch minor foot and toe ills before they become painful and serious.

The old theory that feet are unattractive is simply not a fact for healthy feet look good and they feel well. A teenager should consider the appearance of her feet as important as her hands or face. The habit of careful pedicures done regularly each week makes it possible to keep them good looking.

First signs of beginning foot ailments show in a variety of ways—sometimes a group of toenails, contracted toes, calluses and corns. A feeling of foot weakness after walking short distances is another indication of current and future difficulties.

Take advantage of smart saddle shoes—the laced oxford—for healthful support and remember plenty of walking in such comfortable shoes is an excellent way to assure yourself of good feet. Socks that are too short can help cause toe deformities. Best sock for active teens is an absorbent cotton type a good half inch longer than the great toe.

When you exercise to improve your figure remember the feet that support it—stand on a thick book and curl toes over the side. Do this about 12 times—it is an excellent foot strengthener.

Reader Asks if Planet Pluto Might've Been Neptune Moon

BY RAMON COFFMAN

A searching question has come to me from Tom Wilson, who writes:

"I would like to know how it was possible for a moon to escape from the planet Neptune and become the planet Pluto."

The word "planet" had the original meaning of "wanderer," and came to be used for some of the wandering objects in the sky, objects which seemed to wander in a different manner than the "fixed" stars.

It has been learned that the stars are far from being "fixed." They move at tremendous speeds, but are so far away that they seem to be in the same position from one month to another, at a given time of night.

Far Away

The planets also are far away, but they are near in comparison with the true stars. In the course of 30 days you can observe a big change in the position of Venus or Mars.

The many moons in our solar system "wander" in a sense, but they tend to keep within reach of the planets from which they own them, or seem to own them. We speak of them as "satellites."

It is a widespread belief of our scrapbook.

astronomers that the natural moons were flung from the planets long ago. If this is correct, it is possible that one of the moons of Neptune was flung a little too far to be held in an orbit around Neptune.

28 Years Ago

The object known as Pluto was discovered 28 years ago. Astronomers hailed it as the "ninth planet" in our solar system.

Pluto's orbit was computed, and the extreme distance it could reach was figured at a bit more than four thousand million miles from the sun. At the present time Pluto is within easy range of the orbit of Neptune.

If explosive power sent an ar- lar system "wander" in a sense, but they tend to keep within reach of the planets from which they own them, or seem to own them. We speak of them as "satellites."

It is a widespread belief of our scrapbook.

Mother, Daughter Show Paintings in Library

An exhibition of oil character studies and still lifes by Sara Boal and her daughter, Libby, are on display now in the art room of the Appletton public library. They may be viewed during library hours.

Born in Wheeling, W. Va., Mrs. Boal graduated from Wellesley college and did graduate studies at Cornell and Columbia universities. She first trained as a concert pianist and turned to painting for relaxation.

Although she says she finds it as difficult as any other art form, she knew it was the medium for her concentration of effort.

The painter studied art with Richard Marwede, Margaret McDonald Phillips, Carl Blenner and M. A. Rasko. Afterwards she studied Chinese painting after a visit to the Orient. She also is interested in music therapy.

Mrs. Boal has won a number of art awards, is a member of the board of New York chapter of American Artists Professional start at 3:45 a. m., a few minutes before sunrise there.

In the United States, the settings for services will range from Protestant and Catholic cathedrals in the heart of New York City to mountain tops and to the deck of the historic frigate USS Constitution—"Old Ironsides"—at Boston.

Worship on Mountain

An Easter dawn service will be conducted in the Radio City Music Hall in New York by the Protestant council of the city. The combined choirs of Springfield College of Massachusetts and Virginia Union university, of Richmond, Va., will sing.

Nearby, the Rockefeller center plaza was decorated with 700 white lily plants, 150 yellow calla lilies, and the 82 flags of the United Nations to welcome Easter visitors.

An Easter sunrise service was scheduled atop Spruce peak in the Stowe, Vt., ski area, with worshippers to be carried up the mountain on a chair lift.

In Washington, D. C., an annual sunrise service will be held in a natural amphitheater of the formal gardens at Walter Reed Army Medical center. A similar service is scheduled at the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md.

The Knights Templar will sponsor a sunrise service in the Arlington National cemetery, after which a ber of sunrise services, 10 in all, will be held on the tomb of the unknown soldier.

A non-denominational sunrise service will be held in the Cathedral of the Pines, Rindge, N. H., site of "The Altar of the Nation," recognized as a memorial for all American war dead.

Moravians will conduct their 186th Easter service in Winston-Salem, N.C., an event expected to attract about 40,000 persons. Bands will play through the streets at 2 a. m., waking the people. At 6 a. m., Bishop J. Kenneth Pfohn, 83, will proclaim to the crowds: "The Lord is risen." They will respond with "He is risen indeed."

The musicians later will lead the crowds to the Moravian graveyard known as "The City of the Equal Dead," where there are more than 3,500 headstones, all similar.

Sunrise services will be held at Bald Knob mountain in southern Illinois for the 22nd year.

11 Estate Hearings Set for County Court

County Judge Stanley A. Staudt will hold hearings on 11 estates Tuesday in probate court.

A petition for termination of joint tenancy in the estate of J. W. Chamberlain will be filed.

Hearings will be held on the sale of real estate in the estates of "Martha Chamberlain and Harland Meredon."

Hearings will be held on claims filed against the estates of Ernst F. Schubert, John J. Guilfoyle, Clarence Ziemer, Martha Bielow, Homer H. Benton, Joseph Loberger and August Plantinga.

A final accounting in the estate of Louis F. Knickerbocker will be filed.

Attends Conference

Smith McGraw, president and director of sales at Appleton Wire works, attended a sales management conference at the University of Wisconsin.

Principal speaker will be the Rev. Clarence Huffman, a professor at Marion college, Marion, Ind.

Lester Buckman, pastor of Wesleyan Methodist church; and Clifford Selig, a layman from the host church.

Youth Sentenced for Breaking Probation

Chilton — Daniel Gottschalk, 18, route 2, Menasha, was sentenced to not more than two years at the Green Bay reformatory Friday for probation violation.

Circuit Judge Helmut F. Arps passed sentence.

Gottschalk was placed on probation last fall when he pleaded guilty of breaking and entering.

Green Bay Cheese

Green Bay — Large styles fell off one-fourth to one-half cent at the Wisconsin Cheese Exchange while pasteurized single daisies were unchanged.

Sales: 1-car junior grade cheddars 30; 1 car cheddars 31; 1 car 40-pounds blocks 31. Bigs unfilled: 1 car pasteurized single daisies 34, 1 car junior grade cheddars 30. Trading tone: weak on large styles, steady on single daisies.

Churches Filled, Streets Stilled For Good Friday Worship Hours

Good Friday, the most sorrowful day on the Christian church calendar, found many Appleton residents paying homage to the crucified Christ.

Churches were filled constantly throughout the observance and downtown Appleton was stilled during the 3-hour period from noon to 3 o'clock.

At First Methodist church, where the Appleton Ministerial association sponsored union services, an estimated 1,400 were in attendance. People were able to come in and leave during the course of the service but the church, with a capacity of 880, was filled at all times.

Catholic churches, too, were kept bulging during services. An almost continuous flow of people moved to and from services, but peak hours were reached when communion was distributed.

Because no masses are said for the laity on Good Friday, communion is distributed only once — and that during the afternoon worship.

Other churches also reported capacity attendance and expect similar conditions during Easter morning worship.

Lana Turner's Daughter Held In Slaying Case

body and laid it on a coffee table.

Stompanato fell dead at the foot of a king-size bed.

Phones Father

Miss Turner telephoned her mother, Mrs. John Turner, and asked her to send a doctor. Cheryl telephoned her father. Chief Anderson said:

"It seems that Stompanato had been unwelcome in the Turner home and resisted every effort of Miss Turner to discourage his attentions and to leave the house."

The five-times married actress has been seen in Hollywood night spots many times with Stompanato, but on their return from Acapulco she insisted there was nothing to reports of romance between them.

Cheryl came home from Happy Valley school at Ojai, Calif., Monday for Easter vacation. Anderson said on Monday night Cheryl heard her mother and Stompanato in bitter argument. The next day, Anderson said, Cheryl asked for an explanation and her mother told her she was unhappy with Stompanato and afraid of him.

Anderson said that after Cheryl stabbed Stompanato her mother tried to stop his bleeding with a towel.

Surprise Attack

Reporters asked how Cheryl could stab the angry Stompanato without harm to herself.

"It was just a hell of a surprise to him," the police chief replied. "He was standing up at the time."

Anderson said that on one occasion Stompanato beat Miss Turner.

Their return from Acapulco was in time for Miss Turner to attend last week's academy award dinner at which Miss Turner was a nominee for an oscar as best actress. Joanne Woodward won the honor.

Hollywood's famed attorney, Jerry Giesler, quickly joined Miss Turner, Cheryl and Crane at the police station.

"This is justifiable homicide," he said. "There, of course, can be no trial because of the girl's age. It will be handled by juvenile court."

But Cheryl was booked on suspicion of murder for the purpose of holding her overnight. A petition will be filed to determine whether the case will be handled by juvenile court or adult court, Anderson said.

Ran Away in 1956

After her daughter was taken away Miss Turner, still sobbing, and Giesler went in a chauffeur-driven limousine to her two-story colonial-style home. Reporters were refused admittance.

Cheryl was in the news in 1956 when she ran away from an exclusive girl's school near Hollywood. Several days later she was found wandering on Los Angeles' skid row.

Her mother's life has been filled with glamor and romance. She has been married five times, twice to Crane. Her first husband was band leader Artie Shaw. Her third husband was millionaire Henry "J. Bob" Topping. Her latest marriage was to actor Lex Barker. They were divorced last July 22.

Stompanato, a dark-haired, fashion plate, has been well known in Hollywood since 1948. He was an associate of Mickey Cohen, who used to be a big-time Los Angeles gambler. Stompanato's only actual brushes with the law were two arrests for vagrancy. He formerly was married to actress Helen Gilbert. Their marriage ended in divorce.

Little is known of Stompanato before his arrival in Hollywood except that he ran a string of night clubs in China after serving in the marine corps in World War II.

Cohen showed up at the police station and yelled: "Who did it, who did it?"

Told that Stompanato had been slain by Miss Turner's daughter, Cohen said: "I can't understand it. She and us (Cohen and Stompanato) used to go horseback riding together. She seemed to like Johnny very much."

Cohen said he understood Miss Turner and Stompanato "had a picture deal going."

He said he wanted to claim the body.

Sgt. John Erkes Assigned Duty In Appleton

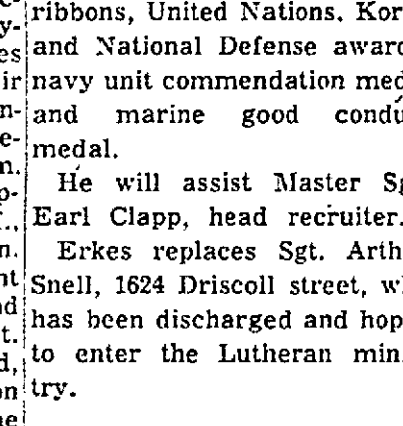

Sgt. John Erkes has been assigned to the U. S. Marine corps recruiting office in Appleton.

Erkes, a native of Oshkosh, has been in the marines for 11 years. He served two years in the Far East and two years in French Morocco. His duty in the United States has included assignments at San Diego, Parris Island, Washington, D. C. and Camp Pendleton.

The new recruiter wears Far East and European service ribbons, United Nations, Korea and National Defense awards, navy unit commendation medal and marine good conduct medal.

He will assist Master Sgt. Earl Clapp, head recruiter.

Erkes replaces Sgt. Arthur Snell, 1624 Driscoll street, who has been discharged and hopes to enter the Lutheran ministry.

Plan Dairy Cattle Clinic In Seymour

Outagamie county 4-H and FFA club members will attend a dairy cattle judging contest clinic at the Outagamie county fairgrounds in Seymour on April 12, J. L. Walker, 4-H club agent, said today.

The program will begin at 1:30 in the afternoon.

Guernsey senior yearlings will be entered by Oscar Miller and Son, Black Creek.

Holstein senior yearlings will be provided by Paltzer, Michael Garvey, West De Pere, Letter and Hilmer and Darrell Mueller, Seymour.

An aged cow judging clinic will be held at the Elmer Kimball farm.

Marlowe Nelson, University of Wisconsin extension dairyman, will direct the clinic. The program is sponsored by the Outagamie County Holstein and Guernsey Breeders' associations.

Deputy Sheriffs to See Film on World Series

Outagamie county deputy sheriffs will see two baseball motion pictures at their meeting at the county courthouse at 7:30 Monday night.

John Kuchenbecker, head of the deputies' association, said one of the films will be on the Milwaukee Braves - New York Yankee games in the 1957 World Series.

'Old Pro' Now Manages GOP Madison Office

Greeley, Formerly of Appleton, Has Been Active in Politics

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The Republican party's state campaign office here has been returned to the management of a professional politician, after a brief and unsuccessful trial with an amateur.

George Greeley, named during the weekend as the new executive secretary of the Republican state campaign center, probably qualifies as "an old pro," as Wisconsin political careers are measured. He has been engaged in virtually every Wisconsin election campaign since he became active in the Young Republicans organization nearly a quarter of a century ago. Greeley is an Appleton high school graduate.

He has had various earlier connections with the state headquarters, and for several years operated the party's most important local campaign office, in metropolitan Milwaukee. He has been a delegate to national conventions and once was a candidate for the nomination for state treasurer.

Greeley takes over a command desk at headquarters here occupied for a few months by Roland Frederick of West Allis, who resigned a few weeks ago.

Felt Inadequate

Frederick resigned with the explanation that he felt himself inadequate for the technical political campaign tasks to which he had been assigned.

There has been a good deal of curiosity about the reasons for the original selection of the cosmetics salesman who conceded that he had no previous experience in political party work and scarcely any acquaintance in state politics.

The generally accepted answer is that the party organization last fall, worried about the divisions in the organization resulting from the fight between former Gov. Walter J. Kohler and former Rep. Glenn R. Davis for the Republican nomination for senator, insisted upon a "neutral" as state office manager. Frederick was a neutral, but he was also inadequate for the job, as he acknowledged.

TAPPI Meeting Set Tuesday in Stevens Point

The Lake States section of the Technical Association of the Pulp and Paper Industry will hold its April meeting Tuesday in Stevens Point.

Visits to the Whiting Plover Paper company and Consolidated Water Power and Paper company's Wisconsin river division are planned.

Technical papers will be presented by three men in the Dr. C. J. West Memorial competition for a $100 prize. The three later will be published in the TAPPI magazine.

The papers are on the utilization of acid bleaching waste water. Jurgen Kleinau, Bergstrom Paper company; a simplified method for determination of pentosans in pulp. Verlin Foltz, Nekoosa Edwards Paper company; and the effect of crushing as a wood pre-treatment. Wavell Cowan, Institute of Paper Chemistry.

Grass Fire

Grand Chute firemen were called to a grass blaze on W. Spencer street at 3:15 Friday afternoon. Fire Chief Vincent Baum reported today. No damage was reported.

Personnel Shift Announced by Tool Making Firm

Fond du Lac — Several administrative changes of the Giddings and Lewis Machine Tool company were announced today by Ralph J. Kraut, company president.

The changes affect the corporation and two of the company's divisions, both in Fond du Lac.

Edgar L. McFerren has been named vice president-sales. Formerly general manager of the Giddings and Lewis and Hypro division, McFerren succeeds John M. Dolan who resigned for personal reasons.

George K. Cassidy was named general manager of the company's field sales division. He transfers from his current position as general manager of the Davis Boring Tool division.

Succeeding Cassidy as general manager of the Davis division is Walter B. Wigton. He had been chief engineer of the Giddings and Lewis and Hypro division. Elevated to the position vacated by Wigton is Walter L. McCann, formerly assistant chief engineer.

William M. Ritter was elevated to the position of sales manager of the Davis division. Although he will continue as the works manager of the Giddings and Lewis and Hypro division, Harry C. Soukup is also the acting general manager of the Giddings and Lewis and Hypro division.

The changes are effective immediately. Giddings and Lewis has two other divisions, the Cincinnati Bickford and the Kaukauna Machine and Foundry.

Marine Officer Team Will Visit Lawrence College

A U. S. Marine corps officer procurement team will visit Lawrence college Tuesday and Wednesday, according to Master Sgt. Earl Clapp, marine recruiter in Appleton.

The team will accept qualified college men for platoon leader and officer candidate courses, Clapp said. Both programs lead to a commission in the marines corps reserve.

Platoon leaders course is open to qualified freshmen, sophomores and juniors. Draft deferment is given to those who enroll. The program consists of two 6-week summer training periods at Quantico, Va. Training must be completed prior to graduation.

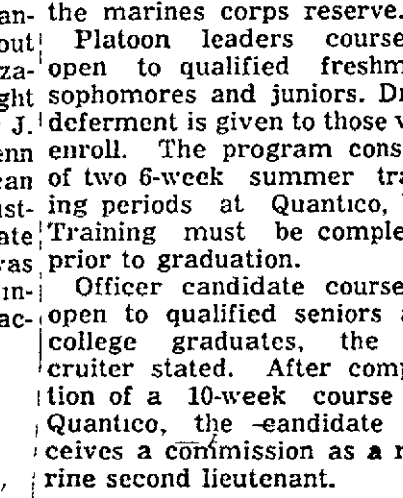

Officer candidate course is open to qualified seniors and college graduates, the recruiter stated. After completion of a 10-week course at Quantico, the candidate receives a commission as a marine second lieutenant.

March Accidents Under Year Ago

The accident total for last month in rural Outagamie county was less than a year ago, 26 compared to 31, and fewer people were injured, 11 compared to 16, County Police Capt. Ronald E. Decker has announced.

However, Decker added, seven more vehicles were damaged last month than in the same period a year ago, 40 compared to 33. The property damage was considerably less, $15,300 in 1957 compared to $7,950 last month.

Of the 26 accidents, 12 were 1-car crashes and 13 involved drivers under 25, Decker said.

See Signs of Worry Over Prosperity of Muskies

Seek Reaction to Proposal Setting Up Experiment at Caldron Flowage

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — There are signs of worry about the health and prosperity of the muskellunge of upper Wisconsin.

Sportsmen at their spring meetings in the county court-houses next month will be asked for their reactions to a proposal to set aside a relatively small body of water in Marinette county for purposes of an experimental restriction in musky fishing.

The commission, sportsmen consenting, proposes to make the Caldron Falls flowage on the Peshtigo river in eastern Marinette county a preserve in which the musky can be taken only with artificial bait. The standard live sucker lure would be illegal, for purposes of the trial that may extend over several seasons.

Sign of Worry

The experiment may sound like a routine one to many persons, but underlying it is some worry about the survival of the musky fishery under existing rules.

The muskellunge is the great goal of thousands of fishermen who throng the north each year. Its range is relatively restricted. It is not a good competitor, in the sense that it can thrive against the competition of the northern pike, for example. Fishing with live bait is admittedly more effective than fishing with artificials, which accounts for the fact that most serious musky hunters use a sucker for the sport. Planting of the species is heavy, but there are occasional doubts expressed by the experts that the musky is being maintained in spite of such artificial introductions.

Stock the Flowage

The idea in the Caldron Falls experiment would be to stock the flowage heavily with hatchery-reared fish for several years, to permit a good, catchable population.

The artificial bait fishermen would be permitted to fish the flowage for a number of seasons. Biologists would check their catches and study population trends—to determine over a considerable period whether a typical body of water could maintain its muskellunge population at a healthy level under artificial bait fishing conditions.

Ultimately the results might be used to modify long-standing rules on other rivers and lakes systems of upper Wisconsin which now contain the most valuable of the sports fishes of the state.

Five Schools to Teach Conservation Classes

Experimental Program Developed by State Natural Resources Committee

Madison — An experimental program for teaching principles of natural resources conservation is being readied for use in five city high schools of the state during the next school year.

Developed by the education committee of the natural resources committee on state agencies, the program is designed to put conservation instruction on an integrated basis in the school curriculum, by way of including such teaching materials in the courses in the biological and physical sciences as well as the social studies courses already offered by the schools.

The Schools

High school authorities in Fort Atkinson, Manitowoc, Wausau, Medford and Merrill have expressed a willingness to cooperate in the experiment, according to Dr. Ira L. Baldwin of the University of Wisconsin. He is chairman of the NRC education committee which developed the plan.

State law has technically required conservation instruction in the public schools for the last two decades.

But, according to the common view of educators and conservation authorities, the program has not been effective thus far—because of a lack of teaching materials, among other reasons.

More Practicable The planning committee here has expressed the view that such instruction probably would be more practicable if, instead of labelling a separate course in the schools, the civics teacher would include discourses on the subject, as well as the biology and chemistry and other science teachers, as a part of their usual work.

Dr. Baldwin said his committee will work closely with the cooperating schools during the course of the experiment, hopeful that an effective course can be developed that can be adapted for the use of all Wisconsin high schools.

Church League Meets Monday

A final organizational meeting for Church league managers will be held in the Appleton Recreation department office, City hall, at 7 o'clock Monday evening.

Pitching rules will be discussed and the possibility of shifting the circuit's usual playing night from Tuesday will also be considered. The circuit's 8-team quota has been filled. Recreation Director E. W. "Duke" Grover reports.

Gunners Killed Twice as Many Bucks as Does

Jackson, Marinette Still Top Producers, Official Count Shows

Hunters last season killed 68,138 deer, including nearly twice as many bucks as does. Of the total, 42,779 were taken on regular licenses and 25,359 on party permits.

This year, for the fifth consecutive year, the deer kill was established by actual counts at the checking stations. Instead of by estimates as is done in most states. Deer were checked by 553 department employees operating through 207 registration stations. The department's analysis of the deer season includes 72 pages of data.

Registration System Since the registration system started the deer kill has been as follows: 1953, 234,032 hunters, 15,880 deer; 1954, 247,310 hunters, 19,877 deer; 1955, 267,612 hunters, 35,060 deer; 1956, 284,645 hunters, 35,562 deer; 1957, estimated 280,000 hunters, 68,138 deer.

Jackson, Marinette, Oneida and Vilas counties continued with the highest deer kills in that order. Bayfield moved from seventh to fifth place. Oconto county moved from twelfth to eighth place and Wood county from seventeenth to tenth. At the request of fruit growers, 367,000 acres of Bayfield county were open for any deer last season.

Hunting Pressure On only three check areas of the north was hunting pressure as great as one hunter to 40 acres. The central counties had a greater hunting pressure.

Under the party permit system, hunters took two does to one fawn, indicating a selection by hunters of larger deer. If does and fawns had been taken at their true ratio the kill would have been about equal in the two age groups.

Yearling deer made up more than half of the kill. Only 5 per cent of the does taken were more than five years old in the areas where does had not been legal game since 1951.

Third Annual Pike Derby at New London Starts Next Week

New London—One of Wisconsin's major fishing events begins next week with the start of the third annual New London pike derby.

The 2-day event is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, April 12 and 13.

This year's prize list, sponsors of the event say, is the biggest and most valuable since the derby began. Prizes will be offered in almost every category including biggest walleye, biggest northern, winning husband and wife team, and heaviest stringer. There will be prizes for children too, sponsors report.

Derby headquarters again will be Taft park in downtown New London. The contest includes all daylight hours from 7 o'clock in the morning to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Wolf river pike run is one of the most anticipated angling events in the state. It annually draws hundreds of fishermen from every section of Wisconsin. The derby is timed to take place at the height of the run although weather conditions play an important role in guiding the fish upstream.

The river's water level is low now but rivermen say an intensive period of spring rain will change that. Unless the water rises, pike heading upstream to spawn will not get into the marshes where they ordinarily go. The spawning, unless water goes up, will be done in the river.

Ryan, Wiechmann Awarded Letters At Whitewater

Whitewater — Several Menasha and northeastern Wisconsin athletes were awarded letters at a Whitewater State college athletic dinner earlier this week. Former Neenah High school coach Jerry Thompson was the main speaker.

Evan Wiechmann, a co-captain of the 1957 squad, was awarded a football letter. Other area monogram winners were Doug Davidson, the other co-captain, and Dale Huebner of Clintonville.

Wiechmann also received a letter for play with last year's baseball squad. Bill McIntyre and Huebner of Clintonville and Jim Wolff of Seymour were other baseball lettermen.

Menasha's John Ryan was among the 10 basketball monogram winners.

Report Outbreak Of Rabies Cases In North Areas

Spooner — An unusual number of rabies cases among wild animals in the northwestern part of Wisconsin this spring, with subsequent infection of a number of domestic animals, was reported Wednesday by conservation department Biologist Arthur Doll.

Doll said that the outbreak of rabies, which causes an almost annual scare in parts of the state, has not reached epidemic proportions. But he urged that all foxes, skunks and other small animals that appear to have lost their fear of man and to act strangely be destroyed.

He also urged that dog owners in the area have their animals vaccinated.

Recession Talk Not Affecting Tourist Trade

Publicity Head Says Prospects 'Rosy' for Summer

Talk of economic recession has had no discernible effect on prospects for the Wisconsin tourist and vacation industry this year, a professional and experienced tourist trade promoter reported here.

Joseph H. H. Alexander, head of the recreational publicity division of the state conservation department, says all the signs he can read show "rosy" conditions ahead for that considerable segment of the Wisconsin economy that depends upon catering to hundreds of thousands of vacation-bound visitors each summer.

"Perhaps it is rosier than you would expect, with all the talk about recession and unemployment," he remarked.

Alexander has been keeping his finger on the pulse of the Wisconsin tourist trade for more than two decades and is the only man who ever occupied his position in the state capitol.

Good Response

Alexander based his estimate on the response to Wisconsin exhibits at outdoors and sports shows around the country this winter, and to the responses to Wisconsin commercial advertising space buying in periodicals, newspapers and other media in the population centers from which this state mainly depends for tourist trade.

By such tests, he said, Wisconsin vacation trade volume may exceed that of previous seasons, he said.

The department now is authorized to spend at the rate of $253,000 a year to lure tourists to the state and to improve the tourist business in general. The Wisconsin conservation commission recently named a special advisory committee to review practices and promotion techniques.

The POWER of FAITH

by Howard Brodie

Jerusalem—It Was Dark, and the stars were clear and large. I went to the tomb of Christ in the Holy Sepulchre. There was an aura of majesty in the shadowy church. Then I came to a garden with an ancient, empty tomb, hewn out of rock. It was still and quiet. The air was fresh. Palm and pine trees, dotted with cones, were silhouetted against the lightening sky. Stars disappeared. A cock crowed. A donkey brayed. Blue rosemary came into sight, and yellow jasmine with its sweet fragrance. A pigeon cooed from a cleft of rock. The grass was wet with dew. Clouds turned to churning yellow. Birds called. The rising sun radiated into shafts. A soft yellow shaft touched the face of the tomb. It was as if someone had said, "He is Risen." (Mark 16-6). Come to Church this Easter

THE EASTER GOSPEL — MARK 16: 1-8

AND when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?

And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: He is risen; He is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

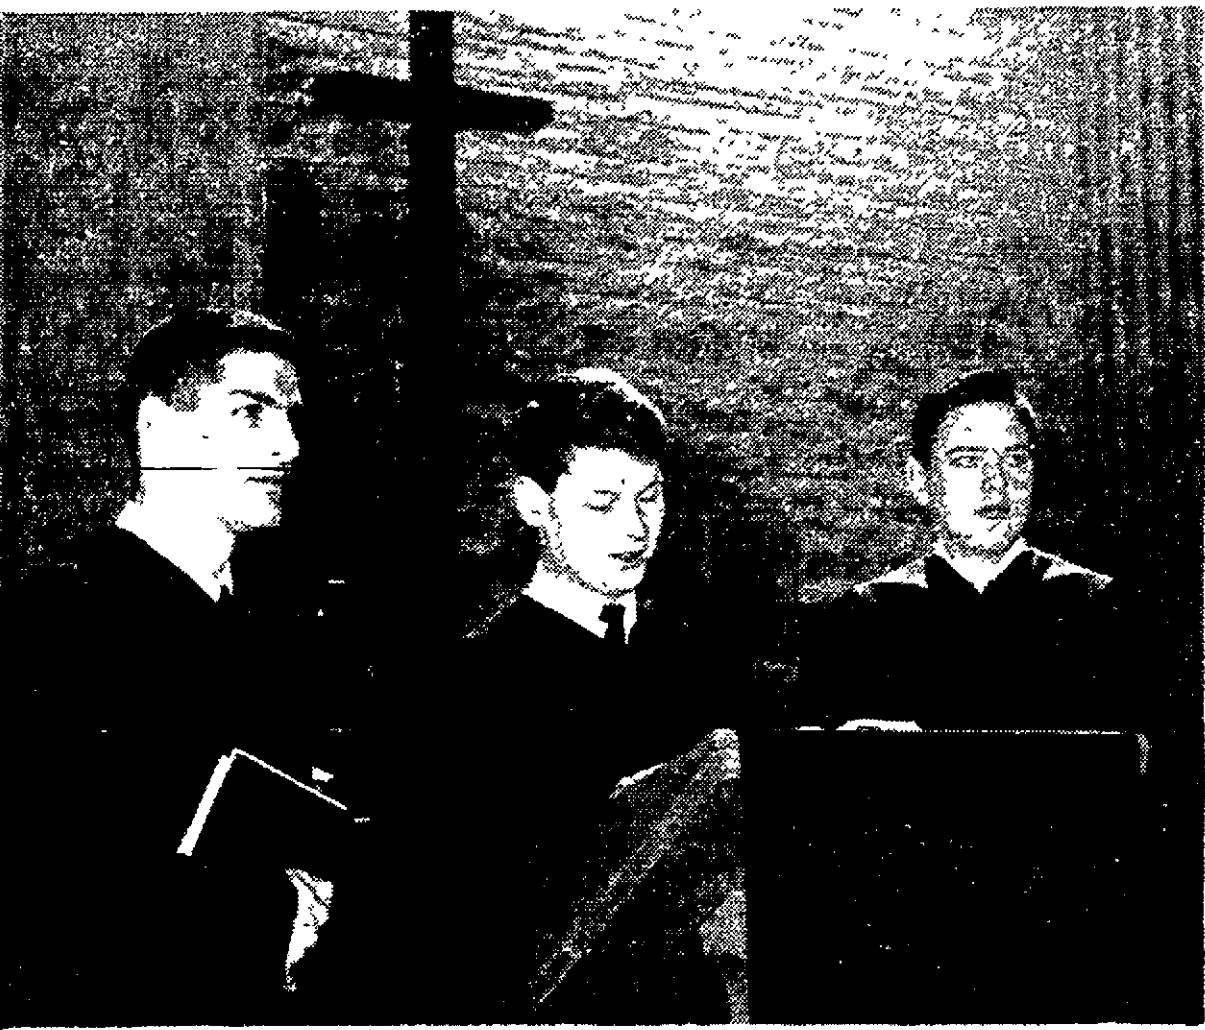

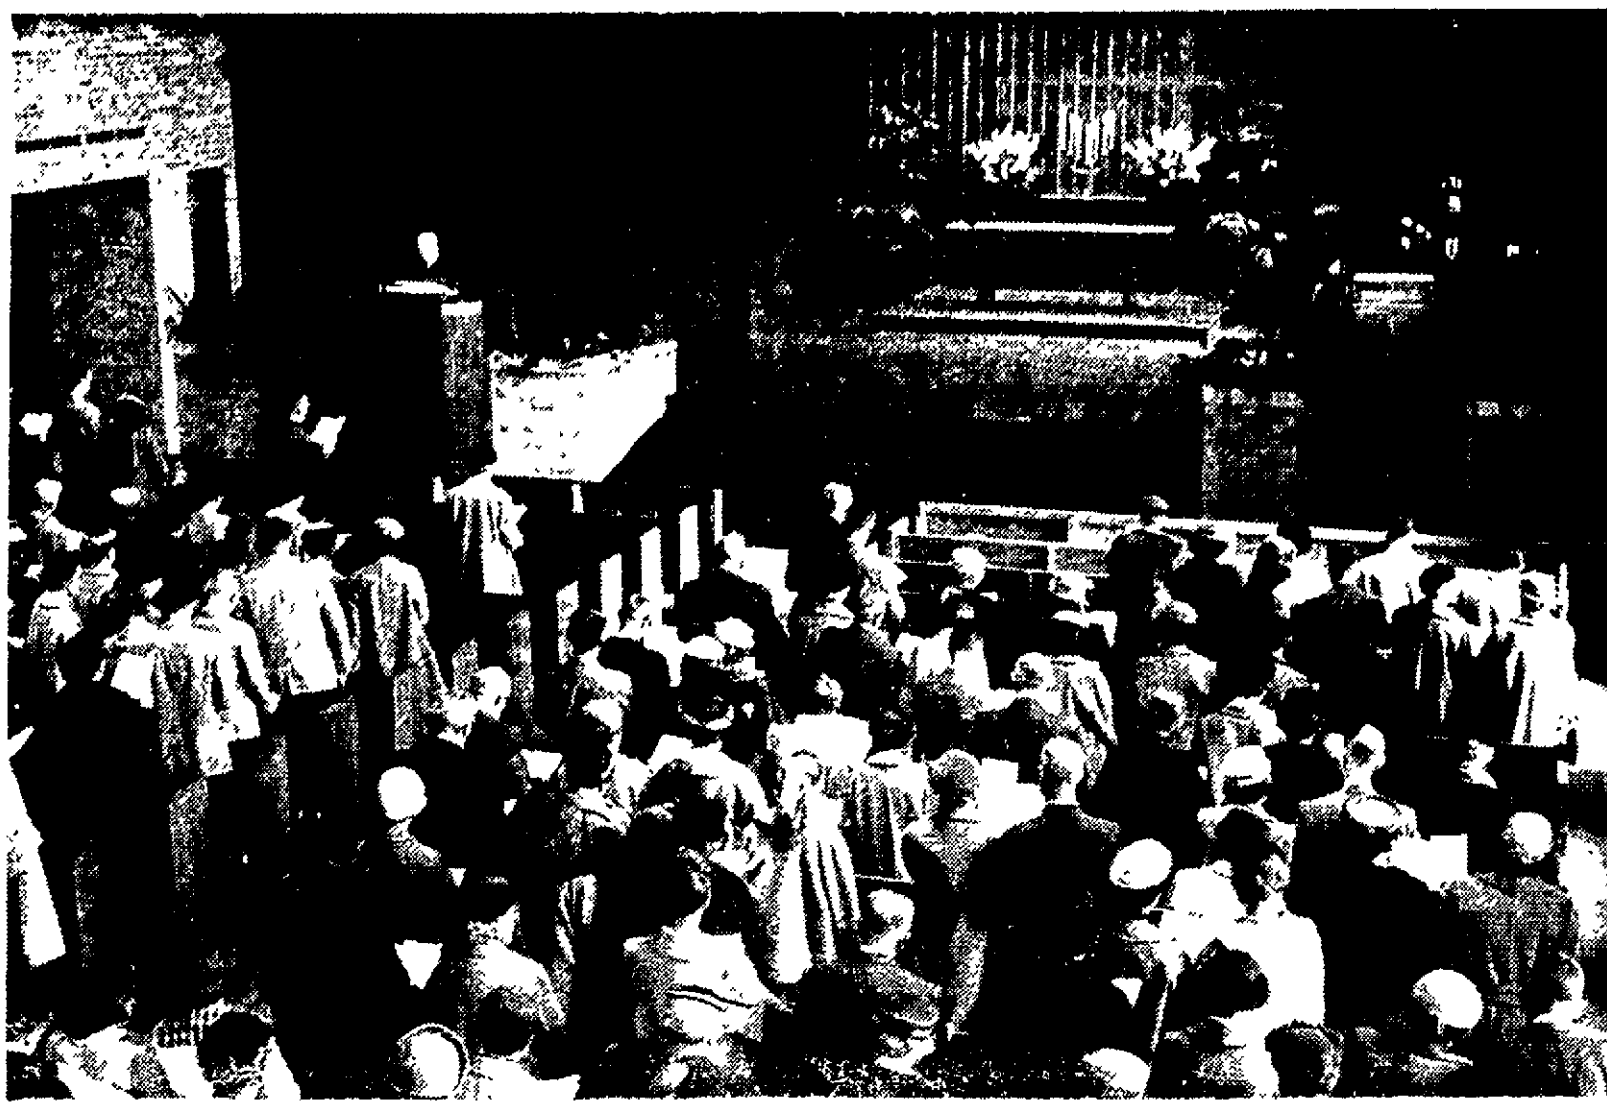

But go your way, — tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

Expect to Start Shopping Center By Mid-Summer

Neenah Building to House 5 Major Operations, 7 to 10 Smaller Stores

Neenah — Construction on a new 12 to 15-store shopping center in Neenah is expected to begin by the middle of this summer, possibly as early as late next month, a partner in the organizing firm said Friday. It should be finished by late 1959.

Irving Peckarsky of the Great Lakes Construction company, Milwaukee, said that the center would probably include five "major operations," presumably large chain stores, and seven to ten branch stores and offices of already established Fox Cities businesses.

Plans to construct the shopping center, which will be on the south side of Winneconne avenue between Highway 41 and the slough, were first revealed in July, 1956.

Financing Solved

Construction was stalled, however, because of difficulties in financing, Peckarsky said. He said that insurance companies and other investing companies had much of their assets sunk into large numbers of such centers through the country and were hesitant to finance another during the nation-wide "shopping center boom" at that time.

Lately an economic change has come about, Peckarsky said, and one of the companies his firm had been negotiating with earlier has since been asking to help finance the center.

Peckarsky said he already has five tentative commitments to the center, but declined to reveal who made them. He said these companies are expected to make final commitments as soon as financing is set and positive plans can be shown.

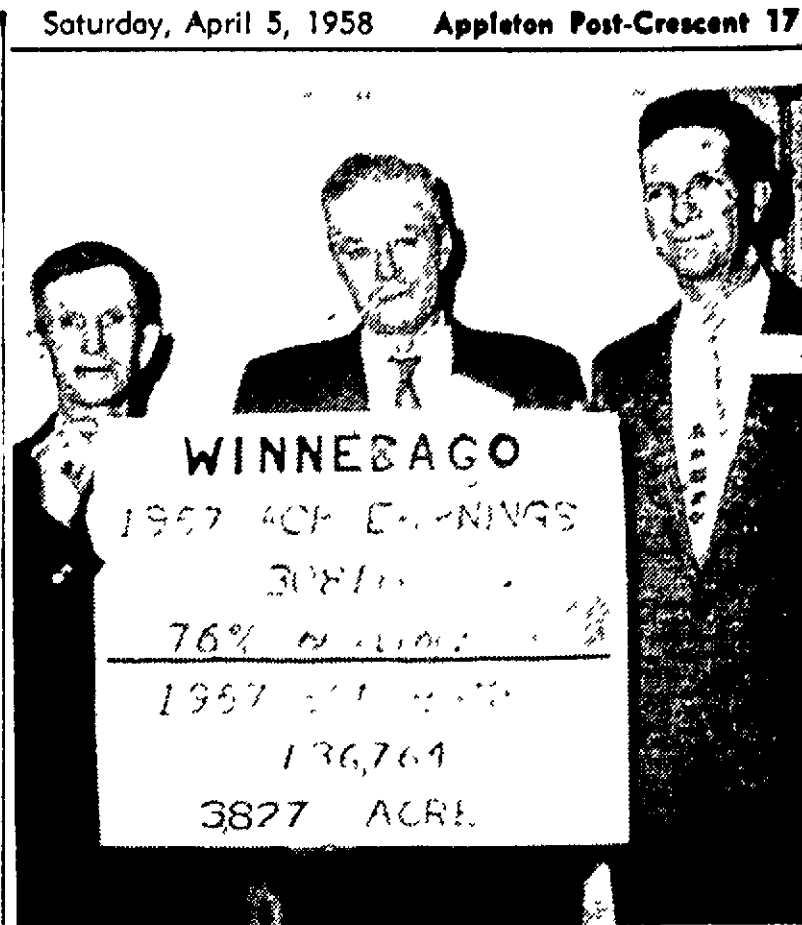

National Tea Store One of the companies which has already announced its plans to operate in the center is the National Tea company, which will have a supermarket-type grocery store. The company announced its plans in July, 1956.

Construction will begin on the center when the major operations have made commitments, he said, and will not be held up in waiting for smaller local businesses to announce their commitments.

It is expected that the smaller stores in the shopping center will include such things as a hardware store, barber shop, men's and women's clothing stores and similar shops. Peckarsky said the center is to include about 100,000 square feet of shopping space and considerable parking facilities.

Farmers Paid $30,816 In Conservation Aid

ASC Reports Federal Government Shares Half of Cost for Work on Land

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Winnebago county farmers were reimbursed $30,816 by the federal government in 1957 as a part of the cost they incurred in performing conservation practices on their farms, according to an announcement made at a district meeting of agricultural stabilization and conservation county committeemen held at Madison recently.

The federal agricultural conservation program under which the cost-sharing payments are made is administered by the ASC with the aid of technicians of the soil conservation service and the Wisconsin conservation department. The county agricultural extension agent serves as ex-officio member of the county ASC.

List Practices

Lloyd Jones, town of Algoma county ASC chairman, stated that in general ASC cost-sharing payments represent about half what it costs to perform the conservation practices. Prominent among the practices performed by Winnebago county farmers are initial establishment of a permanent vegetative crop, sod waterways, terracing, contour strip cropping, tree planting, timber stand improvement, open farm ditches, lime application and tilling.

Other practices performed by Winnebago county farmers were establishment of vegetative cover for winter protection from erosion, stream bank protection to prevent erosion and flood damage to farmland, establishment of a stand of trees or shrubs in a shelterbelt, tree or shrub planting for gully control.

Serve Fruit Breads for Breakfasts

Neenah — Fresh homemade fruit bread, hot from the oven, will turn family breakfasts into special occasions. Winnebago county homemakers made a variety of "quick and easy" breads at club meetings during March.

One type tested by the homemakers was apricot bread, made with two cups sifted flour, one-fourth cup brown sugar, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one well-beaten egg, two tablespoons melted shortening, one cup sour milk and one-half cup ground dried apricots.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients together. Wash the apricots and put through the medium blade of a food chopper. Rub them into the dry ingredients. Combine the beaten egg, fat and milk. Add to the dry ingredients all at once and stir until only all the flour is dampened. Pour into a greased four-by-eight inch pan. Bake at 350 degrees for about 45 minutes.

Another variety cranberry nut bread is made with one cup fresh cranberries, one and one-fourth cups sugar, three cups sifted flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, three tablespoons grated orange rind, one-half cup chopped walnuts, one cup milk, two tablespoons melted fat and one slightly beaten egg. Grind the cranberries and add one-fourth cup of sugar. Sift together the remaining sugar, flour, baking powder and salt. Add the orange rind and walnuts to the flour mixture. Combine the milk, melted fat and egg. Fold in sweetened cranberries. Pour into a greased five and one-half by ten and one-half inch loaf pan and bake at 350 degrees for about an hour.

A TESTIMONIAL
From Another
Satisfied Customer . . .
Dear Lorete:
I am happy to add one more very much satisfied and pleased customer to your already very large list.
When I first came to you for treatment I wasn't very hopeful. My scalp condition was so bad, excessive falling hair and very oily scalp and a nasty dandruff condition, but already after the first treatment I knew Lorete would do something for me and after the third treatment I felt like I had a new scalp and now that I have taken the six treatments my scalp is wonderfully clean and my hair looks alive and growing. I think the price very reasonable and money well spent because you get so much for it. If room permitted I could say ever so much more about how very pleased I am with the treatments. Thank you Lorete.

Freshman numeral winners of last year who are returning include Dale Johnson, Doug Korn and Ron Mueller.

Little Nine conference games will be played against Shoc-ton here April 29; Hortonville, the western division of that here May 6, at Bear Creek May 13 and Omro here May 20. The Wolves are listed for tournament play about the week of May 19.

The Winneconne baseballers, are expected to start outdoor drills next week. They began indoor workouts a week ago but were idled this week because of the spring vacation.

20th Annual Appleton Kegling Event Starts Monday; 1958 Tournament Field Is Down

The twentieth annual Appleton Bowling association tournament opens Monday with 104 teams, 163 doubles combines and 292 singles keglers in the field.

Teams, which bowl at 7 o'clock at Hahn's the first night include Heinritz Sheet Metal, Appleton Concrete, Hoffman's, Standard Manufacturing, Murphy Construction, Appleton Neon, Fraser's, August Winter, Automatic Heating, Wendlandt's, Lake Plumbing and Al Utschig's of the Builders' wheel, the Buckeyes, Wilecats and Badgers of the Appleton Coated circuit, and Offenstien Supply of the Industrial wheel.

Last season's doubles champs, Al Gutschow and John Cotton, will compete April 14. Van Wink TV copped last year's team title. This season's Van Wink TV sponsored aggregate bowls April 16.

Last season's single titlist, Hank Bolwer, and all-events winner, Jerry Reider, won't be back to defend their crowns.

This year's prize list totals about $1,325. The number of entries is the lowest in a number of years, according to M. O. "Bud" Wegner, association secretary.

Gavilan Tops 'Tiger' Jones

'Kid' Impressive In Capturing Split Decision

Philadelphia — (AP) — "Kid" Gavilan may not be fooling when he talks about winning back his welterweight championship.

Any experts who call the kid's comeback a fill-the-piggy-bank venture might do some soul searching after the Cuban's impressive win here Friday night over 155-pound Ralph "Tiger" Jones.

The decision was split but most spectators felt referee Joe Sweeney must have been watching another fight when he scored Jones the winner, 46-44.

Gavilan, weighing 155, moved lively for 10 rounds. Some of his punches were like those of years ago when he was one of the classiest fighters. His defense was excellent too.

Jones, in losing his 22nd fight—he's won 45 and fought 4 draws—apparently impressed the referee with heady in-fighting and several chopping rights to Gavilan's jaw.

The two judges, Nat Lopinson and Jimmy Mina, voted for Gavilan 47-43 and 47-44 respectively. The Associated Press saw Gavilan a much more impressive winner, 49-41.

Badger '9' Tames West Virginia by 6-1 in Opener

Tallahassee, Fla. — (AP) — Co-captain Ron Nieman crashed a 3-run homer Friday as the University of Wisconsin opened its baseball season with a 6-1 victory over West Virginia in the Florida State Invitational tournament.

While Nieman provided the Badgers with a hitting punch, the other co-captain, George Schmid, scattered six hits, never more than one an inning. Schmid struck out three and didn't give up a walk.

Nieman's homer, one of Wisconsin's seven hits, came in the seventh.

Purkey Continues To Help Redlegs

Allows Just 2 Hits in 6-Inning Stint During Win Over Nats

By the Associated Press

The repair job on the Cincinnati pitching staff started at the close of last season is paying off in victories this spring.

Atrocious pitching threw a wrench into Cincinnati's hopes last year. As a unit, the club finished last in almost every department.

General Manager Gabe Paul and Manager "Birdie" Tebbets put their heads together last October and went into the trading mart with gusto.

Purkey Helps

Bob Purkey, obtained from Pittsburgh, has perked up the pitching staff. So has Harvey Haddix, from Philadelphia. Some other new men are also likely to help. They include Willard Schmidt, Ted Wiencek and Marty Kutyna from St. Louis and Bill Wight from Baltimore.

Last night, Purkey gave up only two hits in a scoreless six inning stint as Cincinnati defeated Washington, 6-3.

In their last 10 games of which they've won seven and one, Redleg pitchers have given up only 30 runs.

Schmidt followed Purkey to the mound and gave up all of Washington's runs but Wiencek relieved to put out the fire.

Most of the teams were busy breaking camp, so only four other games were played.

Ralph Terry ran his scoreless pitching skein to 20 innings as Kansas City beat Pittsburgh, 5-1. An error by first baseman Kent Hadley in the eighth prevented Terry from registering his second straight shutout.

The Chicago White Sox nipped St. Louis, 6-5, in a night game on Sherm Lollar's 2-out single in the ninth. The blow scored Tito Francona.

The Detroit Tigers played two of their farm clubs. They whipped Augusta of the Sally league, 4-2, and then lost to Charleston, of the American association 7-4.

UW Athletic Department Optimistic About Prospects for '58 Grid Season

BY ROGER BLOBAUM

Madison — (AP) — Some of the guarded optimism in the University of Wisconsin football department burst into the open Saturday in an official rundown on players invited to spring practice.

The 1958 team, the Athletic department said in a summary of grid prospects, could be one of the finest in the school's history. At least, it added, that's the way it stacks up on paper.

Coach Milt Bruhn said the department was laying the optimism on a little heavy. The prediction, he said, went a lot farther than he would go. He said he would refrain from making any forecasts about the fall campaign until spring practice is over.

Much of what the department summary said, however, has been said by the head coach in recent appearances around the high school banquet circuit.

He will have 27 lettermen back—including nine of 11 starters from last year's final games—when practice opens April 15. The Badgers finished in a fourth place tie in last year's final standings and had a 6-3 overall record, polishing off three conference opponents to end the season. This is Bruhn's third year as Wisconsin head man.

Other Spot

The department's summary indicates that Bruhn will be well fixed for material at every position except guard. Some shifting should enable him to replace Danny Lewis, a graduating senior halfback and the team's leading ground gainer the last two years.

The other spot vacated by a graduating senior is at left guard where Capt. Bill Gehler consistently played good ball. Alex Muszytowski, a West Allis newcomer, is expected to

AAU Swimming Record Book Is Rewritten

Australia's Great Murrury Rose Shines Again

New Haven, Conn. — (AP) — Australian and American swimmers rewrote the National AAU indoor swimming meet record book Friday night in a series of sensational races.

Seven of last year's champions were dethroned in a clean sweep.

"It was a Rose night," said Peter Daland, young University of Southern California freshman coach, "that anybody who saw it will never forget." Veteran Coach Bob Kipphuth of Yale and Mike Peppe of Ohio State agreed.

In all, six meet and three American records were set. Some of them were automatic, however, inasmuch as they featured a new surface breaststroke.

Stars Again

Australia's brilliant Murray Rose starred again. He captured the 220-yard freestyle for his second National AAU title.

Rose shoots for his third title today, the 440-yard freestyle in which he is the world's champion. He won the 1500-meter freestyle to start the 3-day meet Thursday.

The record book was rewritten in the 220-yard freestyle won by Rose in 2:02.5; the 220-yard breaststroke won by Fred Munsch, New York university freshman in 2:38.5; the 100-yard backstroke won by Frank McKinney, Indiana university freshman, in :56.8; the 220-yard butterfly won by Bill Yorzyk, Northampton, Mass., in 2:18.

Also, the 400-yard individual medley won by George Harrison, Stanford University freshman, in 4:42.3, and the 400-yard freestyle won by the University of Southern California, with Rose and Jon Henricks starring, in 3:20.4.

Champs Dethroned

Dethroned in the process were Deck Hanley, Michigan; Manuel Sanguily, Havana, Cuba; Charley Krepp, North Carolina A. C.; Jack Nelson, North Carolina A. C.; Yale's Tim Jeko, the New Haven Swim Club's 400-yard freestyle relay team, and one-meter diver Don Harper, Ohio State.

Harper was upset by Gary Tobian, an Army private from Los Angeles.

Southern California freshmen led by the New Haven S. C. for team honors, 33-20. Nobody else is close.

Bruins Can Enter NHL Finals Tonight

Boston — (AP) — The Boston Bruins need a victory over New York tonight to wrap up their semifinal Stanley cup hockey playoff series and move on to Montreal.

The Rangers, second place finishers in the regular season compared to Boston's fourth spot, have their backs to the wall.

The Bruins lead the best-of-seven series, 3-2, and the Broadway Blues face the rugged task of winning two straight.

Add to New York woes is the fact that all games after the first two have been on Boston garden ice because a circus has taken over its Madison Square garden home.

If the Bruins triumph tonight they will leave for Montreal and the final series against the defending Stanley cup champion Canadiens.

If the Rangers win tonight, the seventh game will be played in the Garden Tuesday.

May Organize New Pro Loop

Promoter Says Plans Going Ahead for Football Circuit

Van Nuys, Calif. — (AP) — Promoter Jack Corbett, controversial figure in baseball for 35 years, said today he has shifted his interest to football and that plans are going ahead for the organization of another professional league.

The proposed new football circuit would be on a nationwide score and would aim at the same standards as the long-established National Football league, Corbett said.

Corbett, who lives here but maintains an office in New York, is well known for his anti-monopoly suits involving organized baseball.

Baseball Parks

He said he was trying to interest baseball people in his proposed football league, primarily aiming at cities where baseball parks are idle during the off season.

Corbett said there is no intention of waging a battle with the National Football league because his projected loop would not try to gain entry into any city where the NFL operates.

Corbett said a number of cities were under consideration for possible franchises. Included are Miami, Houston, Dallas, St. Paul, Buffalo, Denver, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Boston and Cincinnati.

Torrid Finish Keeps Ken Venturi Ahead

Patton Tied For 2nd in Masters

BY WILL GRIMSLEY

Augusta, Ga. — (AP) — Billy Joe Patton says he has no illusions about winning the Master Golf championship although he is just one stroke back of leader Ken Venturi going into today's third round.

"Four years ago when I nearly won, I was in a fog," the 36-year-old Morgantown, N.C., lumberman added. "I was all charged up. This time, I just feel peaceful-like. I have no idea of shooting any more rounds like I did yesterday."

Nervous Jitters

No amateur ever has won this rugged 72-hole test of the golfing elite but Patton shook the equilibrium of the proud pros in 1954 and Venturi, then an amateur, gave them nervous jitters again two years later.

Now this pair — Venturi, a mature pro of 26, and Patton, still amateur — are fighting for one of the sport's most wanted prizes.

Venturi, the first day leader at 68, had to score birdies on the three finishing holes to maintain his 1-stroke edge at 140. Patton shot a 69 to move into a tie with Billy Maxwell, young Texas pro, at 141.

Just Off Pace

Two other players were just another stroke off the pace at 142. Stan Leonard, Canadian pro champion, and Bo Wininger, from Odessa, Texas, were ready to move into the lead. A half-dozen others were bunched at 143.

The latter group includes Sam Snead, a 3-time winner; Cary Middlecoff, an ex-Masters and 2-time National open king; former PGA champion Chick Harbert; Dow Finsterwald and Arnold Palmer, two of the leading money winners, and Art Wall, Jr., whose chief claim to fame has been 34 holes-in-one.

Billy Joe Patton, Left, and Ken Venturi shake hands Friday after they finished second round play together in the Masters Golf tournament at Augusta, Ga. Venturi fired a par 72 to lead the tourney field while Patton carded a 69 and was tied for second, one stroke back. (AP Wirephoto)

Haney's Experimenting Might be Curtailed

Covington Lame, May Postpone Test in Center

Fort Worth, Tex. — (AP) — Primarily because of considerable experimenting, the world champion Milwaukee Braves have managed only a 10-10 record in spring exhibition games. But Manager Fred Haney expects improvement.

As the Braves were idle on Good Friday, Haney said: "Jumping around like we do it is pretty hard to get the and regulars will be going at most positions. Haney had planned a series of experiments to find outfield support, but he may not get a chance to make the test.

He had planned to swing Wes Covington from left to center field for a few innings each day and give Harry Hanebrink a chance in left, but it may not be possible to make the change right away.

"Covington pulled up lame Thursday and I took him out," Haney said. "While he is ready to play Saturday, it may be best to postpone his center field test for awhile."

But while Covington may not see work in center, Hanebrink, an infielder, will get another chance in the outfield. In his first opportunity in three innings at Jacksonville, Hanebrink didn't get a fielding chance.

He may go in for Hank Aaron who is apparently ready for the

Sportswriter Gets Big Reaction to Column

Manitowoc —(AP)— Sportswriter Larry Belonger is convinced now that people do not always read the fine print on contracts, they also do not read the last paragraph of sports columns, even on April Fool's Day.

Or, it could be that Manitowoc sports fans are still too worked up about the 1-point defeat of their high school team in the recent state basketball tournament to joke about it. This was the semi-final round game in which some fans thought the officials should have called a "goal tending" foul against Madison West.

At any rate, Belonger wrote an April Fool column in the Manitowoc Herald-Times announcing that the game was ordered replayed at Madison, that it would be televised and that seats were being sold at $3.75 each at a local filling station operated by "Honest John".

Durek. In the last paragraph of the column, Belonger reminded his readers that it was April Fool's day. Apparently no one read that far.

Durek's phone began ringing five minutes after the newspaper hit the street. He had to get someone to help handle calls that kept coming for the next five hours. After he had closed the station and gone home, people kept calling Durek's house until after midnight. Next day, calls continued.

Other Repercussions But there were other repercussions. Several of the Lincoln high school players reported to the gymnasium for practice, and not a few spectators also gathered there. Coach John Jung also got his share of queries.

Most of the folks are laughing heartily over the whole business but Belonger has had some pretty nasty letters and phone calls.

Belonger's comment in his next column was: "Here we are again — still living. That's quite an accomplishment seeing that our little April Fool's Day story nearly turned the county upside down."

Even Schedule Favors Milwaukee

Of The Associated Press
Look for the Milwaukee Braves to play in the World Series a second straight time next fall. Everything favors them in the National league pennant race—even the schedule.

The world champion Braves meet second division teams in 13 of their first 15 games.

Manager Fred Haney of the Braves has the best of a whack on the National league schedule that finds his team making only three plane trips to California to meet the transplanted Dodgers and Giants in Los Angeles and San Francisco. The St. Louis Cardinals, second in the Cleveland, for the sixth straight year.

Neut Copple, of Lincoln, Neb., outpointed Hideyo Kurauchi of Senuu university in a lightning fast bout to garner 147½ pound honors.

1957 race, make four plane trips to the coast.

Best 1-2 Punch

The Braves may have two 20-game winners in southpaw Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette, who beat the Yankees three times in the series, the last time with two days rest. They have the best 1-2 power punch in the circuit in Hank Aaron (44 homers and 132 runs batted in) and Ed Mathews (32 homers and 94 RBIs).

And when Joe Adcock swings (38 homers and 103 RBIs in 1956) they have the most awesome power.

The Braves could break the team home run mark of 221, set by the 1947 Giants and matched by the 1956 Redlegs. They hit 199 last year when Adcock missed 80 games due to a broken leg and Wes Covington and Bob Hazel spent half the season at the Wichita finishing school.

Fighting for regular starting roles behind Spahn and Burdette are Bob Buhl, Bob Rush, Gene Conley, Humberto Robinson, Bob Trowbridge, Joe Jay, and rookie Carlton Wiley.

The only question mark is "Red" Schoendienst who suffers from groin trouble on occasion. Yet behind him the Braves have a demon second baseman in Felix Mantilla. And if Adcock gets hurt (he had a broken wrist in 1955), Frank Torre is the best first base sub in the majors.

Del Crandall behind the plate and Johnny Logan on short will do their steady jobs and hit an occasional home run.

Redleg Pitching Better
The Cincinnati Redlegs are favored to jump from fourth to second on the strength of better pitching through the acquisition of Bob Purkey, Harvey Haddix and Will Schmidt. They went well against first division foes last year and should do as well or better with Cincinnati's strong defense and balanced hitting.

The defense features the great double play duo of Roy McMillan and Johnny Temple, plus Don Hoak on third and Ed Bailey behind the mask.

Frank Robinson and Gus Bell should spark the attack which figures to get many home runs from big Steve Bilko who will play first base when southpaws face the Redlegs. Left handers beat the Reds 18 times last season and maybe they won't be so gay with Bilko sporting 56 home runs and 140 RBIs for 158 Pacific Coast league games.

St. Louis, a surprise a year ago with a second place finish under Fred Hutchinson, may be shy in relief pitching with Schmidt and Hoyt Wilhelm gone. A year ago they appeared in 80 Cardinal games. Thus writer picks the Cards third.

It will take another fine season by Stan Musial and Del Ennis combined to put the Red Birds in the World Series. The switch of Al Dark to third and Eddie Kasko to short and a better Wilmer Mizell would make the Cards dangerous. They are shy on southpaw pitching.

The pitching staff rests on Larry Jackson (15-9), Andy McDaniel (15-9), Sam Jones (12-9) and Mizell (8-10) with Herm Wehmer (10-7). The likely fifth starter Mizell could not get anybody out last year but has been exceptional this

Dodger Attack Weaker
The Dodgers again will see mostly right-handed pitching because of their 250-foot left field foul line. The Los Angeles Coliseum may benefit the hitting of Gil Hodges and Carl Furillo, but after that the old Brooklyn team's attack may sputter.

This is a third place team. Walter O'Malley is taking to California and without catcher Roy Campanella and with a questionable left knee to ham-season. Haney would like to give him time off in each game. Aaron's also been having a bit of a slump at the plate with only one hit in the last 16 trips.

The warm weather that stayed out of Florida while the Braves were there caught up with the team as it arrived here Friday. The temperature climbed to 89 by the time the squad finished its morning workout and returned to its headquarters at the swank Western Hills inn. Warren Spahn and Lew Burdette flopped into the pool, uniform and all.

Bob Buhl was slated to start today's game with the Los Angeles Dodgers, and Gene Conley was slated for work in the late innings. Don Drysdale was picked as the Dodger starter. Sunday, in another game here, Burdette and Don Newcombe will start.

In this way, you can do all your sanding at once, without worrying so much about exposed bare spots if you happen to sand down to the wood.

Now check the condition of the varnish. If it's in good condition, all you need is to give it a light sanding with fine paper. But if it has cracked or started to peel, you'll have to take it down to the wood. There are many good varnish removers on the market. The paste type is a little handier than the liquid where it must cling to the under-side of a surface.

You'll find that a triangular scraper is best to use because its sharp points will help you get into tight corners.

When all of the varnish has been removed, neutralize as recommended by the remover manufacturer, then sand until the surface is smooth.

Dissolve in Water
If you find dark spots on the wood, get some oxalic acid from the drugist, dissolve in water and apply to the darkened area. When it dries, brush off the residual crystals and you'll find the wood several shades lighter. Continue to apply until the spots have disappeared. Then neutralize with a saturated solution of baking soda. Caution: Oxalic acid is a poison, and should be kept out of reach of children. The bleaching process may raise the grain slightly, and you'll have to sand again.

The painted areas of your boat will be much less trouble, because the new paint will cover any discolorations.

When applying varnish, brush in one direction only, wiping the excess from the bristles into a clean, empty can to avoid transferring bubbles to the varnished surface.

Always use a tack cloth ahead of your work to pick up any dust or lint. Carry a full brush, but not so full as to cause "sags" or "curtains."

Flat White Recommended
You skippers with white boats will save a lot of work and have a whiter craft if you use flat white instead of semigloss. The flat white chalks off through action of rain and waves, a self-cleaning action that keeps the thickness from building up. Next time you paint only a light sanding will be required.

A good bronze or copper bottom paint will resist fouling and is easy to clean.

If you want to add a fancy sea-going touch, paint a boot top just above the bottom paint at the water line. This is a stripe of contrasting color and pleasing width. It must be parallel with the water line all the way around. Use regular boot topping. This is a high-gloss paint obtainable from your marine dealer.

The paint on the sides and bottom should be thoroughly dry before applying the boot top. Use masking tape above and below the stripe, and strip it off while the paint is still tacky.

Now let's talk about your outboard motor. The easiest and best tune-up — unless you're an expert — can be obtained from your dealer's service department. Outboards are becoming more complicated, and specialized equipment is required.

A good service department has an ignition point tester for determining the actual amount of current carrying through the contacts, a coil tester, a non-glow condenser checker, and a flywheel magneto re-charger. Labor charges are fairly per Duke Snider the Dodgers might have trouble finishing in the first division. This writer picks them fourth on the strength of pitching led by Don Drysdale and Johnny Podres. Don Newcombe may have another tough year. He has no Campy to quiet him down when he blows his top.

The Dodgers figure to be tough only when Pee Wee Reese plays short or third but the great captain's legs will limit his action. He is 38. Walt Alston may also have relief pitching problems.

The Philadelphia Phillies are beset with infield problems and sophomore Harry Anderson is moving to first base from right field. The attack will go about as far as Wally Post, Stan Lopata and Rip Repulski can carry it.

It's Time to Begin Getting Your Boat Ready for the Coming Season

BY JOHN BOHANNAN

It's just about time to shake off those winter covers and start getting your boat in condition for the coming season. The sooner you begin, the earlier your launching date.

First order of business is to get your hull as clean as possible. Start with one of those tank-type vacuum cleaners. They're fine for getting dust and fuzz out of the bilge, lifting the dirt from around the keelson and ribs with ease.

Clean Boat Thoroughly
Then get out an old-fashioned scrub bucket with soap and warm water. Clean your boat thoroughly, inside and out, and then you'll be ready for sanding, painting and varnishing.

If your boat is small enough to take into the garage, you'll save a lot of time by keeping it in there during the month.

In this way, you can do all your sanding at once, without worrying so much about exposed bare spots if you happen to sand down to the wood.

Now check the condition of the varnish. If it's in good condition, all you need is to give it a light sanding with fine paper. But if it has cracked or started to peel, you'll have to take it down to the wood. There are many good varnish removers on the market. The paste type is a little handier than the liquid where it must cling to the under-side of a surface.

You'll find that a triangular scraper is best to use because its sharp points will help you get into tight corners.

When all of the varnish has been removed, neutralize as recommended by the remover manufacturer, then sand until the surface is smooth.

Dissolve in Water
If you find dark spots on the wood, get some oxalic acid from the drugist, dissolve in water and apply to the darkened area. When it dries, brush off the residual crystals and you'll find the wood several shades lighter. Continue to apply until the spots have disappeared. Then neutralize with a saturated solution of baking soda. Caution: Oxalic acid is a poison, and should be kept out of reach of children. The bleaching process may raise the grain slightly, and you'll have to sand again.

The painted areas of your boat will be much less trouble, because the new paint will cover any discolorations.

When applying varnish, brush in one direction only, wiping the excess from the bristles into a clean, empty can to avoid transferring bubbles to the varnished surface.

Always use a tack cloth ahead of your work to pick up any dust or lint. Carry a full brush, but not so full as to cause "sags" or "curtains."

Flat White Recommended
You skippers with white boats will save a lot of work and have a whiter craft if you use flat white instead of semigloss. The flat white chalks off through action of rain and waves, a self-cleaning action that keeps the thickness from building up. Next time you paint only a light sanding will be required.

A good bronze or copper bottom paint will resist fouling and is easy to clean.

If you want to add a fancy sea-going touch, paint a boot top just above the bottom paint at the water line. This is a stripe of contrasting color and pleasing width. It must be parallel with the water line all the way around. Use regular boot topping. This is a high-gloss paint obtainable from your marine dealer.

The paint on the sides and bottom should be thoroughly dry before applying the boot top. Use masking tape above and below the stripe, and strip it off while the paint is still tacky.

Now let's talk about your outboard motor. The easiest and best tune-up — unless you're an expert — can be obtained from your dealer's service department. Outboards are becoming more complicated, and specialized equipment is required.

A good service department has an ignition point tester for determining the actual amount of current carrying through the contacts, a coil tester, a non-glow condenser checker, and a flywheel magneto re-charger. Labor charges are fairly

The Dodgers figure to be tough only when Pee Wee Reese plays short or third but the great captain's legs will limit his action. He is 38. Walt Alston may also have relief pitching problems.

The Philadelphia Phillies are beset with infield problems and sophomore Harry Anderson is moving to first base from right field. The attack will go about as far as Wally Post, Stan Lopata and Rip Repulski can carry it.

The Chicago Cubs would lead the league if the standings were turned upside down. Bob Scheffing has little to offer outside of Ernie Banks, who could lead the circuit in homers, and pitchers Moie Drabowsky and Dick Drott. The Cubs will struggle to win 60 games.

standardized. The manager will give you an estimate for a complete spring tune-up.

Obtain Service Manual
If you can't take your motor to a dealer for servicing, write to the manufacturer for a service manual. Read it carefully. Here are some suggested steps:

1. Drain and flush lower unit, using kerosene. Add fresh oil or grease, as recommended by the manufacturer. Replace drain and filler plugs.

2. Remove spark plugs, ground them to the frame, and turn the motor over a few times to blow out the oil you should have left in the cylinders last fall to keep them from rusting. Observe the spark.

3. Clean spark plugs and adjust gap, using feeler gauge of the correct thickness. Most motors call for a gap of 30-thousandths of an inch.

4. Remove gas tank, feed line and carburetor. Clean all units, replace gaskets and screens, and reassemble. If you left any gasoline mixed with oil standing in the motor last fall, you probably have a real mess. A chemical reaction takes place, leaving a residue of varnish. Alcohol is best for dissolving this varnish. Soak, scrub and rinse until every particle of varnish is gone. Don't use paint or varnish remover.

Test Motor In Tank
5. Hook up the gas tank, mix some fuel, adjust carburetor to recommended settings and test motor in a tank or on a boat.

If it runs all right, leave it alone. If not, chances are the ignition breaker points are corroded from standing over the winter. Don't attempt the next step unless you are a good mechanic. Otherwise, seek expert assistance.

6. Remove flywheel, clean and adjust ignition breaker points. A regular factory flywheel puller is best, attaching it to threaded holes on the flywheel and removing the wheel by tightening with a wrench on a center screw bearing against the end of the crankshaft.

If you can't get a wheel puller, back off the flywheel nut to the end of the crankshaft and strike a solid blow with a hammer of at least five pounds.

Clean breaker points with fine crocus paper or a fine tungsten file. Don't use emery paper. It will short-circuit the points. Use feeler gauge to adjust points to 20-thousandths of an inch clearance when open. Caution: Keep hands away from the propeller at all times.

If the spark plugs need cleaning, don't use a sand blast. It will remove the glaze from the insulator, causing it to become coated with carbon deposits and results in a short circuit. Scrape off the thick deposits, then finish the job with carbon tetra-chloride and an air hose. (Copyright, 1958)

Musial Going Strong

Big Years From Boyer and Mizell Are 'Musts' for Cards to Win Flag

BY JACK HAND

St. Petersburg, Fla.—(AP)— As long as 37-year-old Stan Musial can keep playing, the St. Louis Cardinals will be a threat to win the National league pennant. Stan is very much alive this spring, hitting over .350 and playing every day.

After a strong second place finish last year, Manager Fred Hutchinson thinks his club has a real chance to beat out Milwaukee. Improve hitting by Ken Boyer who dropped off 41 points last season and a new year from "Vinegar Bend" Mizell are "musts" for a Cardinal victory.

"We have a young pitching staff," said Hutchinson. "Rile last year, will play first base experience but it is DeDon Blashame (27) whom jumped from high school to the veloping fast. Spotlight on Fans Tonight At St. Louis

Crippled Celtics Meet Hawks in 4th Game of Playoff

St. Louis —(AP) The spotlight will be on the behavior of partisan fans and coaches when Boston's crippled Celtics meet the St. Louis Hawks tonight in the fourth game of the bruising world series of pro basketball.

A sellout crowd of 10,148 all but got out of hand at Kiel auditorium Wednesday night when the fired-up Hawks took the lead, two games to one. The National Basketball association championship goes to the first team to win four contests in the rough-and-tumble playoffs.

Little Help

The defending champion Celtics, needing this one badly, are expected to get little help from Bill Russell, their great defensive standout. He sprained an ankle in the last game and has been on crutches.

Playmaker Bob Cousy also was limping with a bone bruise in his right foot but was expected to be in Boston's starting lineup.

A big issue is what should be done about the excited St. Louis fans. They hurled bits of paper and other debris on the floor—and at Boston players trying for free throws—Wednesday night, and got away with it.

Burnes Criticizes

Robert L. Burnes, sports editor of the Globe-Democrat, criticized the referees, league officials, coaches "Red" Auerbach of Boston and Alex Hannum of St. Louis and the fans in his column today.

Burnes assailed the coaches for their "wild gestures," constant protesting and interminable indignation.

"Granted the hot-headed fans believe they have been goaded aggravation," Burnes wrote, "That's no excuse for throwing debris on the floor or, more specifically, throwing missiles at Boston players while they were essaying free throws."

Talked-About Screen

Hoisted Into Position

Los Angeles —(AP) The most talked about screen in baseball has been hoisted into position in Memorial coliseum.

This is how it looks: It stands 42 feet high at the point where the left-field foul line meets the outfield wall—250 feet from home plate. It runs along the outfield wall at about the same height for 150 feet, then dips down for the next 30 feet to eight feet.

The purpose of the big screen is to prevent the cheap home run, but there are critics who have claimed it won't do the job.

To Meet in Finals

Lincoln, Neb. —(AP) Kirtland (N. M.) AFB will meet the Nebraska Air National guard in the championship game of the Air Force Invitational Hockey tournament tonight.

Kirtland advanced to the finals by beating the Duluth AFB team, 11 to 9, as Darryl Lund scored five goals.

The Air Guard team moved to the finals on a 12 to 11 decision over the Loring (Me.) AFB in one overtime.

Advanced Economic Study Holds First Meeting Next Week

The first class in an advanced study of the nation's economic heritage will begin next week for 20 members of his organization, John Hayes, chairman of the chamber of commerce's industrial division, announced today.

The class will be part of a 7 o'clock Wednesday morning breakfast at the Conway hotel. Classes will be held each Wednesday morning, same time, same place for seven weeks, Hayes said.

Veldor A. Kopitzke, a University of Wisconsin extension service economist, will lead a discussion on "Free Enterprise" at the first meeting. He also will conduct the other meetings, under sponsorship of the vocational school, Hayes said.

More than 100 chamber members recently completed a 17-week study of the country's economy at breakfast meetings.

Ring Ratings Are Shuffled

Magazine Moves Moore to Fourth Among Heavyweights

New York —(AP) "Sugar" Ray Robinson's re-winning of the middleweight championship earned the New York marvel the "Fighter of the Month" honor in the monthly Ring magazine boxing ratings released today.

Robinson's victory over Carmen Basilio and many, other bouts in the past month resulted in a shuffling of the ratings in most divisions.

The middleweight division, in particular, saw several shifts. Basilio took over Robinson's No. 1 spot among the contenders. Holly Mims' upset over "Spider" Webb moved Mims, of Washington, back into the elite at the No. 7 spot. Webb, of Chicago, fell from third to sixth. Charley Humez of France advanced from fifth to third and Rory Calhoun of White Plains, N. Y., was boosted from sixth to fifth.

Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore, who has been banging heavyweights for "walking around" money, was boosted back into the heavyweight list. Ole Archie was given the No. 4 position and undefeated Roy Harris of Cut and Shoot, Tex., moved from fourth to fifth. Pat McMurtry of Tacoma, Wash., was knocked out of the top 10.

Dan Murtaugh Shifts O'Brien and Freese

Fort Myers, Fla. —(AP) Rookie Manager Danny Murtaugh says his Pittsburgh Pirates aren't going to be caught short at any position this year.

Friday he sent Gene Freese, a third baseman, to center field and Johnny O'Brien, a second baseman and a sometime pitcher, to shortstop.

"Just trying to protect myself at every position," explained Murtaugh.

NEWS of the FOX CITIES BUSINESS and INDUSTRY

A bonus payment of $717,552 for 1957 has been credited to the accounts of eligible employees of the Mirro Aluminum company, Manitowoc.

The combined bonus fund for 1956-57 now equals $1,392,749 for 3,017 participating employees.

A first quarter cash dividend of 25 cents a share has been declared by Ansil Chemical company, Marinette. The payment will be the 103rd consecutive quarterly dividend paid to stockholders.

Air Through Turbines May Help Streams

Reduce Pollution by Aeration, Combined Committee Reports

Feeding air into oxygen-depleted waters through the turbines of hydroelectric plants may offer an easy and readily available way to relieve overloaded river conditions. Four of Wisconsin's top authorities on stream improvement indicated this in a joint report on state-industry cooperative stream studies just published by the Wisconsin Committee on Water Pollution and the Sulphite Pulp Manufacturers' Research League.

Authors of the report are Ralph H. Scott, public health engineer of the state group, and Bernard F. Lueck, chief chemist of the Sulphite League. Co-authors with them are Theodore F. Wisniewski, director of the state body, and Averill J. Wiley, technical director of the league.

Their joint report says of turbine aeration: "The present art and science of waste control and treatment appear to be approaching the economically feasible limits where added expenditure to remove the increasingly smaller percentage of biochemical oxygen demand discharged in effluents is becoming prohibitive."

Nature Needs Help

"With increased population, increased industrial expansion, location of new industries and development of new processes, our streams are in some cases now overloaded beyond the ability of nature alone to handle the load. If everything possible has been done to treat wastes, and streams still remain in polluted condition, turbine aeration may well offer a step in control of objectionable conditions which is easily accomplished and readily available. Where a long-range program of waste control is only beginning or partially completed, with the beneficial results in the future, turbine aeration may be a means of temporary correction. The advantages may far outweigh the costs."

Sulphite pulp industry technologists agree with these conclusions in the official report. They caution, however, that one essential fact can only be ascertained after considerably longer tests. There is still uncertainty about whether this method actually damages the turbines themselves, comments Wiley. "If turbine aeration over a period of years should prove to seriously harm the extremely costly power equipment, this could make the entire method impractical. We are hoping this will not happen."

Washington — The veterans administration said Tuesday it is being flooded with mail because of an incorrect report that it has $60 million in unclaimed dividends on World War II GI life insurance policies.

"The unfounded report emanating from Kentucky has brought a deluge of postcard requests for the non-existent dividends," VA said.

A spokesman said an estimated 1,500 postcards arrived yesterday, most of them from Kentucky but some from such states as New York and Texas.

He said the report was known to have been published in a Kentucky newspaper.

VA's statement said "the erroneous report may have started from the recent cancellation of 63,000 undeliverable national service life insurance dividend checks, most of which dated back to the 1948 special dividend paid in 1950 to policyholders or ex-policyholders for time in service during World War II."

"The checks, which totaled less than $3 million, were returned to VA because veterans had moved without leaving a change of address notice with the post office," VA continued.

"Although the checks have been canceled the money is being held in a special fund and will be paid to eligible veterans as they are located."

"More than 99.6 per cent of eligible veterans applied for and received the special NSLI dividend."

False Report Results in VA Problem

Washington — The veterans administration said Tuesday it is being flooded with mail because of an incorrect report that it has $60 million in unclaimed dividends on World War II GI life insurance policies.

"The unfounded report emanating from Kentucky has brought a deluge of postcard requests for the non-existent dividends," VA said.

A spokesman said an estimated 1,500 postcards arrived yesterday, most of them from Kentucky but some from such states as New York and Texas.

He said the report was known to have been published in a Kentucky newspaper.

VA's statement said "the erroneous report may have started from the recent cancellation of 63,000 undeliverable national service life insurance dividend checks, most of which dated back to the 1948 special dividend paid in 1950 to policyholders or ex-policyholders for time in service during World War II."

"The checks, which totaled less than $3 million, were returned to VA because veterans had moved without leaving a change of address notice with the post office," VA continued.

"Although the checks have been canceled the money is being held in a special fund and will be paid to eligible veterans as they are located."

"More than 99.6 per cent of eligible veterans applied for and received the special NSLI dividend."

"Veterans should not write VA unless they are certain they did not receive it."
